University SCOPE Editor Dies in One-Car Accident

A single-car accident this afternoon (Wednesday) took the life of SCOPE editor Ben H. Matthews. He was 44.

He had finished work on this issue of the University newspaper and left campus for vacation when the fatal accident occurred

Mr. Matthews up a daughter, Marjorie, before rejoining the rest of his family.

Near the intersection of U.S. 395 and Interstate Highway 15 his small foreign car rolled off the highway, throwing the editor clear. California Highway Patrol investigators said the vehicle evidently went out of control as the result of a blow-out on the left rear tire.

Taken first to Victor Valley Hospital, Victorville, Mr. Matthews was transferred by ambulance to a San Bernardino hospital where he died shortly after 4 p.m. He had suffered severe head injuries.

Survivors include the widow, Irma Landis Matthews; the daughter, Marjorie; and three sons, Richard, Lawrence, and Kenneth, all of Loma Linda. Like their sister, Richard and Lawrence are planning to enroll at Pacific Union College next month.

Funeral services were scheduled for 3 p.m. Friday at the Campus Chapel. To officiate was Paul C. Heubach, pastor of the University Church, assisted by Howard B. Weeks, PhD, vice president for public relations and development at the University, and Earl R. Osmunson, former president of the Nevada-Utah Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

Pastor Osmunson, now retired, held the church position when Mr. Matthews, an ordained Seventh-day Adventist minister, was pastor of the Ogden, Utah, Adventist church. Mr. Matthews had also held

New Administrator Named to Manage University Hospital

Trustees of Loma Linda University have elected C. Victor Way to be administrator of the University Hospital.

The announcement by University President David J. Bieber said that Mr. Way will assume management of the new medical facility, opened last month, by September 1. Acting hospital administrator Curtis M. King has been under appointment for the past year to take over management of a Seventh-day

Mr. Way Adventist mission hospital in Korea beginning in September.

Mr. King had held the post since February 19, following the resignation of former administrator Clarence A. Miller. Plans for transferring patients and personnel from the former hospital building to the new structure July 9 were completed and

First Degrees Conferred By Merged Institutions

A historic group of 73 summer school graduates received diplomas from Loma Linda University Saturday night at La Sierra Seventh-day Adventist Church, Riverside.

Theirs were the first commencement ceremonies since merger of La Sierra College and Loma Linda University last month. Twenty five master's and 48 bachelor's degrees were conferred on the graduates, who had all completed programs of study on the La Sierra campus.

During the commencement program itself, each degree candidate received his diploma from Robert E. Cleveland, PhD, vice president for academic affairs, along with a brisk handshake from University President David J. Bieber.

A Plea for Maturity

In the commencement address Norval F. Pease, PhD, chairman of the department of religion on the La Sierra campus, cited a sense of responsibility as a key attribute of the mature person.

"There are too many little people carrying big degrees, big titles, big responsibilities," he said. "There are too many people who have not yet grown up emotionally and intellectually

Business Educator to Head New Liberal Arts School

Ralph R. Kooreny, PhD, chairman of the department of business and secretarial administration, has been named dean of the University's school of arts and sciences.

Hospital Tours Conducted Again

Tours are being conducted through the new University Hospital on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 2:30, according to Charles C. Case, director of University relations.

Each tour is limited to 20 persons. Reservations must be made at the information desk of University Hospital.

Special tours for groups (during hours other than 2:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays) may be arranged by appointment. For information regarding tours, call the hospital relations officer, 796-7311, extension 3176.

New Hospital Ceremonies Postponed

Dedication services of the new University Hospital, previously announced for September 24 have been postponed, University officials inform.

New date for the ceremonies, not yet decided, but possibly near the next regular Board of Trustees meeting in January, will permit time for landscaping to be completed as an appropriate setting for the outdoor event.

Tribute to an Editor

The editorial in this issue of SCOPE, entitled, "Two-Campus Coverage," was Ben Matthews's last.

It is something of a testament in which the beloved editor projected his vision of the range and depth of this publication.

Especially meaningful is the declaration of SCOPE's part "in interpreting the role the University plays in meeting the world-wide challenges of the denomination."

As a minister of the church, Ben Matthews was especially mindful of this role of the University and the related role of its official newspaper.

Under his editorial direction SCOPE has been an indispensable link not only with a world church constituency but also with alumni, parents, friends, and the campus family of the University during the past two years.

The contribution has been great.

Although, with fellow journalists, Ben Matthews would have frowned on any excessive use of adjectives, in our reflection of his personal qualities such expressions come freely to mind. He is remembered as competent, intelligent, artistic, sensitive, kind, gentle, patient, diligent, and devoted. Among those who knew him best it is said that never was he heard to lift his voice in anger, sarcasm, or petulance. He was a Christian gentleman.

Because many of his admirable qualities were reflected in his paper, Ben Matthews's influence has touched the lives of many persons throughout the world in a truly spiritual and effective ministry.

He will be missed. He will be remembered.

Two-Campus Coverage

University SCOPE has entered a new phase.

Since the recent merger of the University and La Sierra College, this publication's coverage has been expanded to include the overall University.

La Sierra oriented readers will note with satisfaction, we hope, that a considerable percentage of news this issue stems from that campus.

We intend to continue this coverage in proper proportion as the news of each fortnight dictates. The values of full University news coverage will be supplied to our 20,000 readers now with a much greater range of interest and activity.

What these values may be is worth a moment's reflection.

First, there comes to mind this publication's part in interpreting the role the University plays in meeting the world-wide challenges of the denomination. As one Midwestern administrator underscored it recently, "We wish we had ten times as many (University graduates) as at present."

We think of the many scores of letters and notes of appreciation received from alumni expressing gratitude for a news medium that keeps them informed about their classmates and their alma mater. Usually they read something like, "We devour every word . . ." or, "I am delighted with news about the progress . . ."

Then there are the 240 or more professional people on the average, who use the placement columns each month to seek or offer placement opportunities to their colleagues. This active service is of high and increasing value to our readers.

Student activities receive generous photographic and story coverage. In coming days this area will receive extra attention from the La Sierra Criterion, former newspaper for La Sierra College, which now will serve as a two-campus medium for student comment and news. It will be distributed primarily on the campuses. ("Crittter" lovers off campus, however, may still subscribe for the regular annual subscription price of $2 per year.)

Book Talk discusses, analyzes, may commend, condemn, or simply probe talked-of and influential books of the day.

There is graphic value in the photo-page in-depth coverage of schools, departments, various other academic activities and interesting facets of the University. These afford a closeup of University life that is of special interest to potential students, parents, teachers, contributors, and others.

Space in these pages is often provided to give deserved mention to the philanthropic organizations and individuals who contribute notably to the University.

The processes and accomplishments of a wide variety of research projects is given coverage here.

Last, but by no means least, this publication is perhaps the only denominational medium that carries so wide a range of advertising for the service of its readers.

We hope our widening audience will continue to be informed and stimulated by the expanded-coverage University SCOPE.

Letters

To the Editor

Dear Editor:

What a wonderful missionary service the School of Dentistry and friends are doing in equipping and delivering the fire truck to the mission hospital in Rock Door Canyon, Utah.

I appreciate the fine work the alumni office is doing to make known the contributions fellow members are making in their service to humanity.

Success and best wishes to you and to them in all their endeavors.

M. Zolnerzak
Merced, California

Dear Editor:

I would like to add the names of several more persons who helped recondition the fire engine for Monument Valley reported in your last issue. They deserve credit for their contributions of time and skill along with the others mentioned.

The men are: Kenneth L. Allred, M. Joseph Davis, Vernon Evans, Richard L. Gurney, Kenneth W. Hibbard, Harold K. Jose, Kenneth D. Krohne, William H. Mack, and C. Roger Prince, all of maintenance service.

The cost of equipping the truck was shared by the School of Dentistry Alumni Association

(rather than the school itself) and the Pacific Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists.

Dear Editor:

Must tell you how much I enjoyed the SCOPE of June 7.

Pictures are always so interesting, and especially the picture of the SN class of '22. I knew them all, but after nearly 50 years would never have recognized them except that you gave the names . . .

How the years change us . . . Thanks for keeping me on your mailing list.

Dear Editor:

I was interested in the comments on situation ethics in the July 12 SCOPE.

Certainly the ten commandments are eternal. The only questions at this point are regarding how we live on a day to day basis in the particular place in which we find ourselves. Fletcher's concept can help us in this area, but his

Officials to Air Latest Merger Info

Six University officials will be guests on a local radio discussion program tomorrow, August 17, according to John Parrish, director of public information.

The six men will discuss new developments on both University campuses in a 55-minute broadcast carried live over KACE, Riverside, at 12:35 p.m., and repeated over KACE-FM at 9 p.m. the same day.

Scheduled to participate are University President David J. Bieber; Robert Cleveland, PhD, vice president for academic affairs; Mervyn G. Hardinge, MD, DrPH, dean of the School of Public Health; Curtis M. King, acting hospital administrator; Robert L. Osmunson, associate dean of admissions; and J. Paul Stauffer, PhD, dean of the Graduate School.

THIS MONTH

In Loma Linda University History

Excerpts from letters written by Ellen G. White in August, 1905 afford interesting contrasts with the Loma Linda campus of today.

"There is one building and five cottages." (Fifty-seven buildings are in use in 1967.)

"The main building contains four stories, in which there are about sixty rooms." (The "main" building now contains 11 levels and about 2,000 rooms.)

"There are 76 acres of land, 23 of which are set out to fruit and ornamental trees." (Enlarged to approximately 100 acres now.)

"There is an ample water supply, the property having two good wells." (Five wells are presently in service.)

"There are several good-carriages, five horses, three cows, about one hundred hens and a few turkeys." (Times have changed.)

"There are many lovely pepper trees. Hundreds of happy birds sing in the branches." (Still true.)

New Class Offered In Isotope Handling

A course in basic radioisotope procedures will be offered by the School of Health-Related Profession's Department of Radiological Technology during the fall semester.

The two unit course, consisting of lectures, films and laboratory, will be held in four-hour sessions, one evening per week. It is designed to qualify individuals for California state licensing for the use of radioactive materials.

The course may be taken either for credit or non-credit, but enrollment is limited to 12. Interested persons should contact Ivor C. Woodward, dean of the School of Health-Related Professions early, so the most convenient time for classes can be arranged.

Bob Mitchell Singing Boys Lead New Program Series

The first Loma Linda University 1967-68 Artist and Lecture Series program will feature Bob Mitchell's Singing Boys Saturday night, September 16.

Since its conception in 1934, over 600 boys have been members of Bob Mitchell's Singing Boys. Ranging in age from 9 to 14, the boys have appeared in more than 150 motion picture and television programs including "The Jolson Story," "The Babe Ruth Story," "The Agony and the Ecstasy," and "The Red Skelton Hour."

Mr. Mitchell has earned fame not only as director of the Singing Boys, but is a versatile musician in his own right. Born in Los Angeles, he received the honor of being named a Fellow of the American Guild of Or-

The Idea of a World University

By Michael Zweig (Southern Illinois University Press, 1967)

Reviewed by J. Paul Stauffer, PhD

Dean, Graduate School

As men have sought the means of living peaceably together in a shrinking world, their idealists and visionaries have inevitably wondered how education at its highest levels might serve to break down the ethnic, economic, political, cultural, and religious barriers that divide men and foster misunderstanding, prejudice, mistrust, and conflict. A surprising number of them have developed proposals for an international university and, over the last fifty years, have directed those proposals to the League of Nations and, since 1945, to the United Nations.

In THE IDEA OF A WORLD UNIVERSITY Michael Zweig reviews the whole history of the international university idea; examines in turn all the major proposals, pointing out their objectives, their plans for academic structure and curriculum, their analyses of possible financial support, and he reports the response to those proposals.

Monotonous Response

Over the years the proposals have become more detailed and apparently more practical, but the responses of the sub-committees or commissions of the League or the UN charged with responsibility for education have been monotonously similar—expressions of interest, discussion revealing a widespread sense of threat to national interests and institutions, and no action.

It is true that some international education proposals have succeeded, but all of them have been much less than universities. The most promising of them might some day become world universities.

CERN (European Organization for Nuclear Research) and the Graduate Institute of International Studies, both in Geneva, and the International Atomic Agency in Vienna, together with its International Center for Theoretical Physics in Trieste, are hopeful beginnings, but each is seriously limited in scope and consequently unable to fulfill the purposes of a university.

No Culture Supreme

For a university to be a really international institution Zweig would insist on a "situation in which students, faculty, and administrators are drawn from the widest possible national and cultural origins representing most, if not all, of the nations of the world and certainly all of the political and cultural blocks. But a further qualification must be made, that no single culture, no single ideology, no single point of view obscure any other."

Although the scheme of organization in Zweig's book involves him in a good deal of repetition, his case for international university, bolstered by an impressive body of fact in both text and appendices, is persuasive. One hopes he is correct in sensing a climate more favorable to the implementation of an international university than ever before.

Those who propose an international university see it as a positive force in creating international understanding and good will. Whether their faith is justified only experience will tell, but I suspect anyone who perseveres through Zweig's book would cast his vote for attempting the experiment.

A reader of the book who is interested also in Loma Linda University is likely to ask, Does the idea of a world university carry any special relevance for Loma Linda University? The University sees the field of its service as the world, and in response to that responsibility its graduates are almost everywhere.

In the light of THE IDEA OF A WORLD UNIVERSITY, however, one wonders, is the best service that which comes from abroad administered from above? Might not our University planners well be studying the feasibility of establishing some campuses in other parts of the world in which American students might spend some time, but where most of the students would be from the area in

Department of Nutrition

AUDREY R. KLEIN, DI'67, and therapeutic dietitian Jane Cutting plan special menus with a patient. Dietitians view patient diet consultations as an opportunity to teach good dietary principles at a time when interest is high.

UNDER research grants, assistant professor Barbara J. Myers, working with Ruth Little, PhD, has conducted investigations into the effect of vegetable protein foods on growth and reproduction in rats. The studies continue this summer.

CLAUDIA V. STEELE, one of 12 recently graduated dietetic interns, receives her pin from Ruth Little, PhD, former director of the department of Nutrition, and assisted by Kathleen K. Zolber, assistant professor of nutrition. Dr. Little is now on Sabbatical leave, attending the University of California, Berkeley.

GRADUATE STUDENTS often use the computer for research projects. Bonita J. Emmerson, at the input typewriter, is making a statistical study of alcohol consumption of rats. Charlene McConaughy is programming a computerized diet adequacy analysis service for nutritionists and researchers.

DIET EDUCATION for departing patients or outpatients with special needs is an important part of the dietitian's work. Thelma A. Gibb, a graduate student, explains food "exchanges" in the diabetic diet.

GLORIA M. TYNDALL, graduate student, weighs foods for low carbohydrate diets being evaluated in weight reduction studies. She is part of a team of researchers on the continuing project which includes U. D. Register, PhD, professor and chairman of the department of nutrition, Irma B. Vyhmeister, associate professor of nutrition, and J. Lamont Murdoch, SM'63.

Assistant Named For Foundation

Fred M. MacDonald has been named assistant manager of the Loma Linda Foundation, according to Arthur W. Spoo, general manager of the foundation. In his new post, Mr. MacDonald will be responsible for trust administration and property management.

MacDonald

He succeeds Irving E. Gray, who has accepted a position as secretary-treasurer of the Upper Columbia Conference of Seventh-day Adventists. In his new position, Mr. Gray will be responsible for financial affairs of the 71-church district, which covers portions of Idaho, Oregon, and Washington.

Seattle Banker

Mr. MacDonald, 49, is a graduate of the University of Washington, Seattle, and Walla Walla College, College Place, Washington. He is a veteran of 15 years in the trust department of the Seattle National Bank of Commerce.

In 1959, he received the Harold Stonier Award from the American Institute of Banking, educational branch of the American Bankers Association. The award is presented annually to the student with the highest average grades who earns the American Institute of Banking graduate certificate.

University Hospital Offers New Child Psychiatry Service

The University has inaugurated a new psychiatric service for children. The child psychiatry service, first in the University's 63-year history, was established last month, coinciding with the opening of the new hospital.

The service, a part of the School of Medicine department of psychiatry, is open to children 17 years of age or younger, and to their parents.

Head of the facility is Edward T. Himeno, MD, assistant professor of psychiatry. He assumed his full-time position July 1 after being director of the psychiatric clinic for the mentally retarded child and director of psychiatric services, department of pediatrics, at the Los Angeles County General Hospital, Los Angeles. He has been a part-time faculty member since July 1966. Other staff members include T. John Lukens, MD, associate clinical professor of psychiatry, and Areta Lea, social worker.

Eventual Inpatient Service

Since January 1966, students in the School of Medicine have seen a limited number of child patients and their parents as part of their training in the former Betty Stoehr, a registered nurse. They have two daughters, Mrs. Terry Foulkes of Yakima, Washington, and Judy Sue, 17, who will live with her parents in Loma Linda.

Department of Psychiatry. With the establishment of the child psychiatry service, however, more children will be accepted as outpatients and eventually an inpatient service will be developed, Dr. Himeno states.

Only Nisei Specialist

A native of Hawaii, Dr. Himeno is probably the only Japanese-speaking psychiatrist in Southern California. Following his graduation from the School of Medicine in 1958, he interned and completed his psychiatry and child psychiatry residencies at the Los Angeles County General Hospital in affiliation with the University of Southern California School of Medicine. He is preparing for board certification in child psychiatry.

Dr. Himeno and his wife Miki, a graduate of Pacific Union College, Angwin, have two children: Cheryl Aimee, age 13, and Guy Randall, age 9. All four Himenos are active members of the Central Japanese-American Seventh-day Adventist Church in Los Angeles. They will continue to make their home in Monterey Park.

Dentists 'Refreshed' At Monument Valley

Their regular service to Lancaster area dental patients was interrupted last month, but Harold C. Brockmann, SD'57, and Alvin D. Schnell, SD'63, weren't sunning themselves at a vacation resort.

The two dentists, who practice together at 1340 West Avenue J, Lancaster, spent three weeks in a professional continuing education "refresher" course at Loma Linda University's extension dental clinic in Monument Valley, Utah. The clinic in which the course was conducted serves Indian residents of the vast, colorful valley along the Arizona-Utah state line.

Recently Accredited

The Monument Valley extension dental clinic was recently approved by the national dental service accrediting agency. The accreditation came as the result of an evaluation visit to the clinic by representatives of the Council on Hospital Dental Service of the American Dental Association.

Working with the clinic's full-time resident director, Kenneth E. Wical, DDS, assistant professor of restorative dentistry, and three assistants, the Lancaster dentists saw several hundred Indian patients, mostly Navajo and Paiutes. According to Dr. Brockmann, most of the service in the dental clinic was routine; one of the objectives of the new University-run program is to encourage regular dental check-ups by the 10,000 Monument Valley residents, thus lessening the need for emergency treatment.

The non-profit clinic, operating under the name "Monument Valley Community Oral Health Service," was remodeled and enlarged from another building in 1966. It now comprises five dental operating units, x-ray processing facilities, laboratory, waiting room, and administrative office area.

At the clinic the Lancaster dentists and their families occupied housing units recently constructed near the clinic to provide living quarters for visiting dentists and dental students from Loma Linda University.

Adjacent to the dental clinic is the Monument Valley Mission Hospital, established as a clinic in 1950 at the request of which the campus is situated, with faculty members and administrators representing several nationalities and cultural backgrounds?

Might not affiliation with existing overseas colleges, such as that with Middle East College, be developed and exploited for greater usefulness both for Loma Linda University students and the overseas school? While the conception of an international institution as defined by Zweig is not fully appropriate to a Seventh-day Adventist international university—it would after all be dedicated to the Seventh-day Adventist world view—Zweig's definition points a general direction that might help to solve some higher education problems in our world church.

Sending promising students to the United States has resulted in the loss of many of those students to their home countries and to the work of the church in those areas. Creative planning might produce a world university for the church that would offer education of the highest quality, education that would be Christian and Adventist, but would not promote, intentionally or unintentionally, values or practices identified as predominantly American.

May Provide Pointers

The present outreach of the University to the world through its alumni and its field stations is praiseworthy, but as a world university it might fulfill its purposes more satisfactorily. If those who direct the course of the church and of the University should see a world university as a solution to pressing problems of the last third of the twentieth century, some valuable pointers along that path may be found in Zweig's THE IDEA OF A WORLD UNIVERSITY.

SDA Attorneys Plan La Sierra Meet

Seventh-day Adventist attorneys will meet in a four-day session on the La Sierra campus August 24-27.

The newly formed Association of Seventh-day Adventist Lawyers will discuss topics of mutual concern, elect officers, and study the possibilities of a Seventh-day Adventist law school.

Meetings and workshops on church-state relations, trusts and estates, and income, gift, and estate taxes will be held. J. J. Conley, audit agent for the Los Angeles office of the Internal Revenue Service, will address the Friday noon luncheon on IRS gift-evaluation procedures.

All Seventh-day Adventist attorneys are encouraged to attend. Additional information and reservations are obtainable from Kenneth H. Hoppe, general counsel for the Loma Linda Foundation, on the Loma Linda campus.

Second Student Dental Team Goes to Monument Valley

The second summer team of students from the Loma Linda University School of Dentistry began serving at the Monument Valley dental clinic August 1, states Charles T. Smith, DDS, dean of the school and administrator of the Monument Valley program.

The new team, consisting of senior dental students Clifford G. Munce, Jerry D. Sproul, and Robert W. Stalcup and senior dental hygiene students Marjorie E. Hablutzel and Phyllis J. McCourry, will operate the Utah dental clinic under faculty supervision during the month of August.

The new team replaces the first summer team, whose members were senior dental students Ronald D. Neufeld, Gordon M. Rick, and Norman E. Corbett, senior dental hygiene student Sharon K. Ayres, and graduate dental hygienist Mary M. Walter.

Operates Mobile Clinic

According to Kenneth E. Wical, DDS, assistant professor of restorative dentistry and resident director of the dental clinic, the student teams provide dental care for more than 10,000 residents of the desert region. In addition to operating the dental clinic, the students also operate a mobile clinic which serves the outlying areas.

Students who participate in the program receive a cost of living allowance which covers transportation to and from Monument Valley, near the Arizona-Utah state line, maintenance of their homes while at the clinic, and modest living expenses.

The dental health program for Monument Valley was launched by the School of Dentistry in 1965 with a $129,217 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Additional funds were provided by the Utah Indian Affairs Commission, which provided a total of $125,000 for the service's first five years of operation.

The clinic in which the student teams are working was remodeled in 1966 at a cost of $25,000 from the federal grant. The clinic includes five operatories, two wall-mounted dental x-ray units, an x-ray processing area, laboratory, waiting room, and administrative offices.

Although not large, the new location permits each of the University's several alumni associations separate office space for files and operational activities. An exception is the School of Medicine Alumni Association, which had earlier leased offices of its own in the Loma Linda Medical Arts Building.

"We welcome and invite all alumni to visit us in our new, nicely air conditioned office," says Georgia R. Wilcox, alumni relations officer. "This is their building, and we want them to feel at home here."

Annuals from past years and many other publications of interest to alumni are available for browsers, she says.

"We also welcome students from the various University schools," she adds, "for they will be alumni, too, one day."

Colored pins in a world map, representing alumni distribution, will be one of the featured office decorations.

New telephone extension numbers are 2928 and 2929.

To Direct Bronx Student Health Care

A 1965 School of Medicine graduate has been appointed director of the Student Health Project of the South Bronx in New York.

Donald Y. Madison, MD, and some 58 medical, dental, and nursing students representing 34 professional schools are participating in the project.

Co-sponsored by the Albert Einstein College of Medicine, New York, and Montefiore Hospital and Medical Center, New York, the project is one of three such programs being carried out this summer under grants from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The New York project offers an opportunity for the health professional student to attack health problems in the South Bronx, New York City's largest low-income area. Medical, dental, and social science students will work together with community organizations to observe the health care system from the patient's vantage point.

Other projects are being carried on in Los Angeles and Chicago.

Doctor's Open Letter Displays Desperate Mission Needs

My dear Ruben:

This may startle you! But in preparing the information you wished, we find most of the same places we wrote of before are still waiting for volunteers.

Some mission stations have almost given up hope that their new medical facilities will be occupied and are becoming embittered by our seeming disinterest in their plight. Of course we realize there is a shortage of medical personnel in this country but they do not understand. Many physicians and dentists are being trained; why shouldn't some come to help them?

Large Problems

Some furloughs are overdue, some hospitals are dreadfully understaffed, and some areas have no one to attend the long line of suffering humanity. We gladly submit this list to you, (to the readers of this column also), and hope that you or some other skillful individual may feel a tugging at his heart to answer the Macedonian call.

Needs for Medical Personnel

In the Far East, positions in five stations: physicians in Taiwan and Saigon; surgeons in Manila and Bandung; and a surgical nurse in Singapore (Youngberg).

In Inter-America, a self supporting general practitioner in British Honduras; nurses in Puerto Rico (Bella Vista) and in Jamaica (Andrews Memorial).

In the Middle East, a board surgeon and x-ray laboratory technologist in Libya (Ben-ghazi.)

Northern European Division: surgeons at Ghana (Kwahu) and Nigeria (Ile Ife); also a dentist, a nurse, a pharmacist, and a general practitioner in Ile Ife; general practitioners at Sierra Leone (Masanga Leprosarium), Ghana (Kwahu), East Nigeria (Ahoada), Ethiopia (Empress Zauditu Memorial); nurses at Sierra Leone (Masanga), and Ethiopia (Kuyera).

The South American Division: a general practitioner in the Inca Union, Southern Asia, two surgeons in India at Ranchi and Kerala as medical directors, and board surgeon in Pakistan, Karachi.

Southern European Division: a relief doctor for Koza (Cameroun). In the Trans-Africa Division nine general practitioners are needed: two at Uganda (Ishaka), two at Rwanda (Mugenero), a division relief doctor, one in Tanzania (Heri), one for Malawi (Blantyre), one for Kanye, (Kendu), one for Congo (Songa), and a dentist for Malawi (Blantyre).

Prospects for Service

It is our privilege and responsibility to make these calls known to you and others who may be able to help in the work of God for humanity. If you cannot go now because of your present engagements, and we are happy that you are working on this, you may know of someone who is able to go.

I sincerely trust that dedicated and willing people may be attracted to these opportunities for service. Thank you for your inquiry and for the prospect of your future service.

Most sincerely yours,
C. E. Randolph, MD

Fellowship Open To Women Teachers With College Degree

The Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Missouri, recently announced the fourth competition for its graduate fellowships for women, according to J. Paul Stauffer, PhD, dean of the Graduate School.

The objective of the program is to find and develop college and secondary school teachers among that group of American women whose preparation for teaching has been postponed or interrupted.

Fellowships are open to any woman who holds a bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university in the United States and who is not at present eligible for any one of the other fellowship programs of the foundation.

The award is for one year beginning September 1, 1968, and is renewable annually provided the recipient remains in good academic standing and follows her original study plan. The maximum award for 1968-69 is $3,000 plus tuition and fees, or, for heads of household, $4,000 plus tuition and fees.

Further information may be obtained from the Graduate School office or from the Danforth Foundation, 607 North Grand Boulevard, St. Louis, Missouri 63103.

Book Editor's Note:

What Martin Luther started at the time of the Reformation is just now involving contemporary society, including members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church. Before the Reformation a man's life was controlled more by the authority of the church than by God.

When Martin Luther declared that Christianity was a subjective experience, not something controlled by the church, he was attempting to give man freedom as an individual responsible for his acts before God.

Many who liked the idea and formed different churches of their own paid only lip service to salvation by faith. They, too, appealed to ecclesiastical authority for decisions and interpretations. Man still stood before the church, and not God.

Today, man is a different creature. If not highly educated, he at least has information, much of it instant, all around him. He has discovered that not all of the "moral judgments" of the past have been moral. He wants to "do the right thing for the right reason," and he knows that this may differ for different people in different situations. He is willing, at last, to take up his responsibility before God.

Situation Ethics expounds the type of decision making that might be exercised by this responsible person. He is a mature person who uses the law as a code of ethics, but more in spirit than in letter. He knows there may be situations where the two might differ. Christ set a good example in such situations.

The challenge for our church and others at this time is to help people become more mature, i.e., more responsible, more concerned with the spirit of the law.

This is not as easy as it sounds, since legalism is always love, and learning to love is not easy for most people. Condemnation, like legality, is much easier. With the "reformation" going on, we can't ignore the

Hospital Hosts Conference For Chaplains and Trainees

Fifty-two hospital chaplains and chaplain trainees participated in a two-day conference at Loma Linda University Hospital earlier this month.

Robert R. Dollar, a Protestant chaplain at Napa State Hospital, Napa, and California regional director of the Association for Clinical Pastoral Education, said the purpose of the mid-summer conference for students and supervisors was to present papers and discussion related to the students' summer experiences in clinical pastoral work for reaction and evaluation by the group.

Loma Linda University Chaplain Charles W. Teel, treasurer of the Pacific region of the association and host for the session, said that teams of students from six southland cities were present at the conference. The teams, consisting of seminary students and chaplain trainees, represented institutions in Los Angeles, Frontera, Camarillo, Loma Linda, Long Beach, and Norwalk.

The Association for Clinical Pastoral Education is a national organization for Protestant clergymen operating over 200 clinical training centers for chaplains in cooperation with denominational and private organizations.

Short Term Trust Agreements Offer Long Term Advantages

Editor's note: The following interview with Leonard Robinson, associate director of development, is the second in a series of discussions with the University's Development Office staff members.

Mr. Robinson, what is the point of a "short-term" trust agreement with the University? Isn't a trust something that by nature is of long duration?

Many are, but a short-term trust provides for a temporary transfer of income-producing assets to a charitable organization such as the University, for specific advantages.

At least one's current taxable income would be reduced by a short-term trust, wouldn't it?

Yes, the donor is not accountable for income produced by the assets while they are in trust. More than this, he may make gifts even beyond the usual 30 per cent of adjusted gross income with the same effect as full deductibility.

And all these assets in trust eventually come back to the donor?

Yes, their subsequent income is preserved for retirement or other future use.

Tell me, how long is the "short" of short-term?

Two years or more, when the beneficiary is a charitable organization.

And if not an organization?

The minimum period is ten years when the beneficiaries are individuals. Interestingly enough, however, it is possible to distribute income to a charity for two or more years and then distribute it to children or other individual beneficiaries for the remaining years. This may, of course, involve gift taxes in the case of individual beneficiaries.

Can more than one organization be benefited?

Yes. If the University acts as trustee, for example, it is willing to receive only a portion of the income of the trust assets and distribute other portions to additional denominational organizations or other charities as desired.

What happens if the donor does not wish to reclaim his short-term trust?

If the donor wished to have the trust assets passed on to third parties without reversion to him at the end of the specified period, he may claim their value as a charitable gift in the year the trust is established.

For example, if the trustor sets up a trust providing for income to the University for fifteen years and then distribution of the assets to his children, he may claim a charitable contribution of 40.3 per cent of the current value of the assets being placed in trust.

What kinds of assets may be placed in short-term trusts?

Many kinds. Securities, notes, mortgages, trust deeds, property, trust agreements, and so on.

I'm wondering about an item such as cash in the bank, deposited there temporarily for the benefit of some charitable organization. Could this be included?

It is not necessary or advantageous to use a short-term trust to cover this. In such a case, the University would issue a non-interest-bearing note for any period the donor may choose—it's not limited to the two-year minimum. Then for that period the University would have the use of the funds in its program while the donor in effect makes a contribution of the income earned by the funds, but without personally receiving any taxable income.

La Sierra Campus Applications Up, Registration Soon

Registration for the fall semester on the La Sierra campus will be on September 15 for new and returning students, according to Donald E. Lee, PhD, La Sierra campus registrar.

Graduate students may register at any time during the first week of instruction.

Enrollment appears headed for a record high, with over 2,000 applications received and more than 1,700 students accepted. Comparable figures for a year ago showed 1,898 applications and 1,602 acceptances.

Summer enrollment on the La Sierra campus has also increased — nearly 10 per cent over last year, says Dr. Lee.

About 650 students enrolled in the two summer sessions, an increase of 70 students over last year. Approximately half are graduate students.

Summer session director Vernon H. Koenig, EdD, notes that over 300 of the summer students are regular undergraduate students accelerating their educational programs with summer study.

Relations Officer Newly Appointed

Richard A. Schaefer, of San Bernardino, has been appointed community relations officer for Loma Linda University, it was announced last week by Howard B. Weeks, vice president for public relations and development.

Mr. Schaefer, 26, was graduated from the University's La Sierra campus in 1966. He has served as an assistant in the University relations office at Loma Linda for the past year. In the new post he will be responsible to the director of University relations for managing University participation in community activities and for providing assistance to guests of the University.

Free New Recipe Book

FOUR-YEAR-OLD April Porter doesn't read, but the illustrations and photographs in Loma Linda's new vegetable protein booklet have captivated her attention and she's telling an imaginary friend about it on her "special" telephone line. This recently published 20-page handy booklet contains 96 new, tasty recipes, most of which are of the "quick and easy" variety.

From nearer by came Elizabeth Adams Behrends, Mary Mossberger Braniger, Antoniette Morrell Klingbeil, Elsie H. Ziprick, and Hazel Treible, honorary member of the class of 1941.

Also sharing in the celebration were six nurses who served in the 47th General Hospital during World War II with the hostess and guest of honor. Two are University alumni: Ione Haygood, '29, and Emily Jane Brown, '35 (SM '53). Co-hostess was Geneva Rittenhouse Anderson, '42.

Grace Robbins Tucker, '29, has been working at the White Memorial Medical Center as a private duty nurse for the past fifteen years. She also worked with the open heart surgery team for several years.

Virginia Bentz Butler, '50, is working at Hospital Yerba Buena in the state of Chiapas, Mexico. She writes of the wonderful experiences working in the mission field.

Norma Eldridge, '59, GS'64, presently nursing in Tokyo, Japan, writes of the opening of the new Kobe Adventist Clinic under the direction of Edwin H. Krick, SM'61.

Nancy Strawn Anderson, '59, received several awards for her horsemanship recently. She competed at the annual Asmara Horse Show held at the Imperial Palace in Asmara, Ethiopia.

Alumni News

On June 1 a new alumni board took office, and is already deep into plans for an eventful year ahead. They are pleased with the prospect of 75 new students entering the school this fall, the first class to meet in the Kathryn Jensen Nelson wing of the new University Hospital.

A glance over the year just past reveals several achievements:

1. Project SHARE donations of $13,216.56 for School of Nursing furnishings. (Only $958 short of the goal set 18 months ago, and involving all but 5 per cent of all classes.)

2. A new home for our growing rummage sales, "House of Thrift." (Over $1,700 was raised during the fiscal year for the association budget.)

3. A revival of professional activities by means of the Cardiac Nursing Institute in March and the first Mary Monteith Lecture.

4. Several cooperative endeavors for the school by alumni and students, through the Associated Students of Nursing.

5. A savings account with the Loma Linda Foundation in the amount of $3,000.

6. The appropriation of $700 for student scholarships and grants, in addition to annual loans.

7. Support of alumni missionary projects of over $350 in cash and equipment.

8. Publication of the School of Nursing Alumni DIRECTORY as a service to the membership.

9. The "biggest yet" homecoming last June, with an attendance of 377 enthusiastic banqueters enjoying an international setting and theme. Featured were guided tours of the new hospital and University complex.

10. Through the University

Alumni Federation, involvement in cooperative ventures, together with representatives from the several other alumni associations from schools within the University.

Fellow board members join me in expressing grateful thanks to committee members and many other volunteers who helped make 1966-67 an outstandingly productive year for the association.

AVAILABLE WHILE THEY LAST — Ninety copies of the 165-page first edition of the School of Nursing ALUMNI DIRECTORY 1967, published in June.

At $2 each, this valuable reference now includes a useful supplement: an additional listing of alumni according to the states in which they reside.

Those who already have their directory may obtain the supplement for $60 by promptly sending their prepaid order to the Alumni Relations Office at Loma Linda, California 92354. Many alumni have expressed their appreciation for this directory service undertaken by the alumni association, especially since it is offered at a price much below the cost of publication.

First in State to Offer BS In Radiological Technology

A bachelor of science degree in radiological technology is being offered by Loma Linda University for the first time this fall, according to Ivor C. Woodward, dean of the School of Health-Related Professions.

Loma Linda University is the first school in California and the only one west of the Rockies to offer a degree program in radiological technology. Fewer than half a dozen other schools in the United States currently offer such a program.

Must Complete Requirements

To enter the degree program, students must have completed requirements leading to a certificate in radiological technology. Course work will include completion of general education requirements necessary for a bachelor of science degree and theoretical work in nuclear medicine or radiation therapy.

The radiological technology degree program lasts approximately four and one half years. The first year is taught on a liberal arts college campus where students take general education requirements and radiological technology course prerequisites including anatomy and physiology, physics, and mathematics.

Academic and Clinical Work

The second year is taken on the Loma Linda campus and consists of academic classwork in radiological technology.

The third year, students train in clinical work at an affiliated

The August 29 issue of The Youth's Instructor features a cover photograph by John E. Crowder, SM'69, and University SCOPE advertising manager.

Picturing the Kaiser Wilhelm Cathedral in West Berlin, Youth Instructor editors state that "as a record photo, the cover subject is well done. The bombed out carcass of a once-stately cathedral stands in stark contrast to slick modern skyscrapers as a reminder of the devastation of war and international inhumanity to man."

Mr. Crowder photographed the cathedral during a 1965 trip to Europe.

hospital: University Hospital; White Memorial Medical Center, Los Angeles; Glendale Adventist Hospital, Glendale; or others that may be added. Following the 15 month clinical training period, the student is prepared to take the examinations qualifying him as a registered radiological technologist.

The final period of instruction takes place on the Loma Linda campus where the student specializes in either nuclear medicine or radiation therapy and takes courses in administration or education.

Further information about the program and scholarships may be obtained from the Dean of Admissions, Loma Linda University, Loma Linda, California 92354.

Physical Therapy

The Physical Therapy Alumni Association's annual business meeting was held May 31, 1967, at the rehabilitation center of the Glendale Adventist Hospital, Glendale, with over 40 alumni, wives, and friends present. After refreshments and a tour of the center, associate president C. William Habenicht, '60, reviewed the alumni activities of the year and presented a challenge for active interest in the association and alma mater.

Revised by-laws were discussed and unanimously approved. Howard Sulzle, '63, treasurer, presented the financial report and named the four members of the graduating class of 1967 who have received loans from the Nielson fund for their internship period.

Mr. Habenicht expressed appreciation to outgoing officers and then introduced John Wheaton, '47, presenting him the president's gavel for 1967-68.

Mr. Wheaton took the chair and presented the new officers for the year: president-elect William Cox, '63; vice president Howard Sulzle, '63; secretary Margaret Jones Parker, '63; treasurer David Whitcomb, '66; publications secretary Stella Peterson, '43; Director 1967-1968 Ralph Alway, '57; Directors 1967-1969, Walter Rozell, '59, and Charles Cannon, '55.

"One of the problems of our world is too many immature climbers," he told the graduates and an estimated 700 spectators. "Time and experience will solve the immaturity problem for those who want to grow up. But heaven help those who consider the mature as their enemies and maturity as decadence."

On Time, No 'Goof-Offs'

Dr. Pease described the mature person as one who "is on time for his job and does it well. While the 'goof-offs' are goofing off the mature person is carrying the load. Does this sound dreadfully old-fashioned? So be it!"

A reception for the graduates on the campus mall followed the formalities.

In June ceremonies prior to the merger last month the University had conferred 325 bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees. La Sierra College graduated 176 through the master's degree level.

Art Students' Poster Entries Take Top Honors 2nd Year

Loma Linda University art students won three out of the six awards in the Southern California region of the 1967 Collegiate Advertising Poster Contest, according to Herschel Hughes, assistant professor of art.

The contest, an annual event sponsored by the Zellerbach Paper Company and the American Advertising Federation, was entered by 39 colleges with a total of 534 entries.

Recognized for the poster entries on the contest theme, "Keep America Beautiful," were Alex Stephens, awarded a $50 second prize; Rex Moore, honorable mention and $10; and David Loveless, awarded a certificate of merit. This was the second consecutive year that Mr. Hughes' students have taken top honors in the contest.

Students Active In Youth Teams

A day camp operated in the Highland Park district of Los Angeles by Loma Linda University and the Southern California Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, is in its final weeks, according to Monte Sahlin, head of the Adventist Collegiate Task-force operating in Highland Park.

The day camp, operated for children ages eight through 16, with special programs for adults and young adults, is a part of the students' training in community relations at the University.

Members of the ACT team are Ciro Sepulveda, Los Angeles; Warren Dale, Loma Linda; and Eliseo Orozoco, Los Angeles. All are students on the La Sierra campus.

Dietetics Students Get Scholarship

The American Dietetic Association Foundation has named Ruby-Ann Shiroma of Portland, Oregon, and Roberta J. Keswick of Crystal City, Texas, recipients of two $500 Mead Johnson Laboratories Scholarships.

Miss Shiroma will enter a combined dietetic internship and master's degree program in public health at the University. She received her bachelor of science degree from the University's La Sierra campus.

Miss Keswick received her bachelor of science degree from the La Sierra campus and will begin a one-year dietetic internship this month on the Loma Linda campus.

Elementary School Has Nongraded Class

Loma Linda University students and others who have school age children may be unaware that one of the largest Seventh-day Adventist operated elementary schools is located in this community, states E. Kenneth Smith, Loma Linda Elementary School principal.

One of the unique features of the 500-student, 22-teacher school is the nongraded primary classroom. Initiated five years ago, the nongraded primary program provides schooling for children who are at least seven years of age and who have no previous formal schooling.

"Many parents feel that they should be the only teacher of their children until they have reached eight or 10 years of age, as presented in the book Education," Mr. Smith says. "Most children who enter the nongraded class finish more than one formal grade each year, and after two years in this program are ready for the conventional fourth grade. This is not due to necessarily better teaching, but because the children are older and more mature when they begin their schooling."

One full-time and one part-time teacher instruct the nongraded primary classroom. The program is restricted to 22 students.

Further information may be obtained from Mr. Smith at 10654 Anderson Street, Loma Linda, or by phoning 796-0207.

Annual 'Family Life' Seminar Rated One of the Best

Authorities on family life and family problems lectured at a two-week graduate seminar on Loma Linda University's La Sierra campus recently.

The seminar course was designed for teachers of classes in family living in area schools, according to Mary P. Byers, associate professor of home economics.

Among authorities who lectured at the seminar were Everett L. Shostrom, PhD, director of the Institute of Therapeutic Psychology, Santa Ana; Rose Somerville, EdD, editor of the Journal of Marriage and the Family and professor at Teacher's College, Columbia University, New York; Harrison S. Fee Plan Backed In State Review

Salaried staff physicians at county and teaching hospitals, such as University Hospital, who hope to gain Medi-Cal funds for treating patients won the backing of the State Health Review and Program Review Council late last month.

David B. Hinshaw, MD, dean of the School of Medicine, warned the council that medical school salaries are not large enough to attract faculty members unless they can also collect additional fees for treating patients.

"It's not only legal, it's not only ethical, it's an absolute necessity," Dr. Hinshaw stated.

The Medi-Cal program, operated by the state of California, is designed to provide mainstream medical care for low-income California residents.

Hospital Occupancy Reported High

Ninety per cent of available beds in the new Loma Linda University Hospital are occupied by patients one month after its opening.

Hospital figures last week showed 230 patients occupying the hospital's 260 available beds. Additional nursing units providing another 59 beds are ready to be opened when the patient load grows to require them, according to the University Public Information Office.

The old University hospital, vacated July 9, had 186 beds.

The new structure is designed to accommodate 319 inpatients in nursing units on its third through seventh floors. The eighth and ninth floors have been "shelled in" by the builders, but their interiors are being left unfinished until future needs demand their use.

At such a time the patient bed capacity could be raised to 510.

In the first month of operation more than 1,000 emergency cases were seen and treated in the hospital's emergency receiving unit. Another 8,000 unhospitalized patients were seen by physicians for non-emergency office appointments in the new building.

An official said figures on the total number of patients admitted to the new hospital since its opening July 9 were not readily available.

Want Dope on Benefits, Pay, Holidays? Use New Data Dial

"An annual vacation with pay is granted to employees who have completed one year of service. The amount of vacation granted is . . ." Want to hear the rest? Just dial extension 3456 for Employee Data Dial.

The newly innovated Employee Data Dial goes into service tomorrow, according to Frank S. Robinson, supervisor of industrial relations and originator of the idea.

"Employee Data Dial will

Broadcasts From European Capitals Heard on KSDA

A series of six political commentaries by Alonzo L. Baker, PhD, professor of political science, are being broadcast on KSDA-FM (89.7 m.c). The first of the series was given last Thursday at 10 p.m.

The reports, recorded in London, Prague, Berlin, and Moscow, were prepared by Dr. Baker as he led 16 Loma Linda University students on a 10-week tour of eastern European countries and Russia. The 15-minute programs will be presented on the University-operated FM station each Thursday at 10 p.m. and re-broadcast each Sunday at 5 p.m.

Entitled "The Changing Role of Great Britain," the first program discussed the effects on the island kingdom of the Middle East crisis and of Britain's attempt to enter the Common Market.

Following completion of the formal tour, Dr. Baker and Paul O. Campbell, assistant professor of speech, also on the tour, will travel to Israel as guests of the Israeli government. It is not yet known whether a report will be made from Israel.

pertain almost exclusively to employee policies and benefits," states Mr. Robinson. Plans include changing the recording periodically to include new information.

Special telephone recording and playback equipment, similar to that utilized for "Dial-A-Prayer" and other recorded-message answering services has been installed by California Water and Telephone Company, a member of the General Telephone Company.

Employee Data Dial will be in operation 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The extension number is 3456. From outside the University dial 796-7311 and request the extension.

New Draft Ruling Affects Status of Graduate Students

Loma Linda University students enrolling in a graduate study program in the fall of 1967 may receive only a one year deferment from the Selective Service System according to present regulations, states Herbert A. Walls, University registrar.

Allowed One Year

According to a new ruling passed by the United States Congress, students entering graduate school for the first time are deferred for only the 1967 school year. Returning graduate students who have not completed their studies are allowed one additional year to complete their master's degree. Doctoral students already enrolled in a study program are deferred for a total of five years from the time they enter graduate school. Present regulations stipulate that graduate school deferments will end at the end of the 1967-68 school year.

Must Make Progress

"Medical and dental students who are making satisfactory progress in their studies are currently deferred for the four year duration," Mr. Walls says. "However, should a medical or dental student fail to complete a year, he may lose his deferment."

Students pursuing an undergraduate course are deferred until the student receives his degree, fails to make normal progress, or reaches the age of 24 (whichever occurs first). Normal progress of an undergraduate student is defined as completing at least 25 per cent of a course leading to a degree in a 12 month period for four consecutive years.

Should Get New Forms

All undergraduate students who are subject to the draft should secure from the registrar's office a copy of the new form "Request for Undergraduate Student Deferment."

Students must complete this form and return it to their local boards if they desire to receive a II-S classification.
