Heart Team Leaves Athens; Greeks Continue Program

The Loma Linda University heart team left Athens, Greece, for home last Friday after performing 30 open-heart surgeries and seeing more than 1,000 patients in clinical cardiac conferences.

Last Wednesday, 20 open-heart surgery patients were presented with mended heart pins at a news conference.

The conference, attended by various government, embassy, and hospital officials, heard Dr. Ellsworth E. Wareham, professor and co-chairman of the department of surgery and leader of the University's heart team, report on the progress of the patients operated on by the California team in the last five weeks.

"We are confident that the Greek physicians and surgeons at Evangelismos Hospital will ably carry on the open-heart surgery program," Dr. Wareham said.

The seven team members were each presented with a medal in recognition of their service to the Greek people, and Loma Linda University was presented with the Evangelismos Hospital medallion for its contribution to the open-heart program at Athens' foremost medical center.

The team was invited to inaugurate the open-heart surgery program at the Athens hospital by its director Dr. Thomas A. Doxiades.

Greek surgeons led by Dr. Christos Stathatos have worked closely with their American colleagues and have participated in each of the 30 surgeries.

Other team members, in addition to Dr. Wareham, include C. Joan Coggin, MD, assistant professor of medicine, the team's pediatric cardiologist; and Wilfred M. Huse, MB, ChB, assistant professor of surgery, the second surgeon.

Roy V. Jutzy, MD, assistant professor of medicine, has served as adult cardiologist; and Bernard D. Briggs, MD, professor and chairman of the department of anesthesiology, as anesthesiologist. Lavaun W. Sutton, assistant professor of nursing, is nursing specialist in post-operative care; and Raymond M. Savage is the heart-lung machine technician. John Parrish, director of public information, is the team's administrative assistant.

Sponsoring the trip were a number of private citizens, mostly of Greek descent, who have been active in the past in bringing cardiac patients from Greece to this country for surgery.

Olympic Airways, contributed the trans-Atlantic tickets for the team at the request of the Greek government.

PLANS TO DEMOLISH the old Loma Linda Sanitarium and Hospital were announced last week by University officials. Opened for use on March 20, 1929, the structure was built at a cost of $200,000.

Old University Hospital Slated For Demolition

Loma Linda University officials announced plans last week to demolish two more landmark buildings on the Loma Linda campus. The original structure of the old Loma Linda Sanitarium and Hospital and the entire School of Tropical and Preventive Medicine building are scheduled for demolition in the near future. Last October, the Annex, first of the three University Hospitals, was leveled.

Robert E. Cleveland, PhD, vice president for academic affairs and chairman of the University's campus space committee, said that approximately 40 percent of the total old hospital building would have to come down.

Present day construction standards do not permit occupying a four-story building of wood construction, according to Dr. Cleveland. The center section of the old hospital has three stories and a basement which, according to fire regulations, is considered four stories.

Original plans for the use of the vacated hospital building included offices for various staff members of public relations and development and for the School of Public Health and the School of Health Related Professions.

Now that the building has been condemned, only the School of Public Health and the School of Health Related Professions will occupy the remaining space, Dr. Cleveland states.

The west wing of the hospital, formerly housing the ambulatory patients unit and doctors' offices, will be remodeled for the School of Public Health.

The three-floor east wing will also be remodeled and be divided between the Schools of Public Health and Health Related Professions.

The School of Public Health will also occupy the Hector Memorial Clinical Laboratory, which is a fairly recently constructed building.

According to Dr. Cleveland, the former Medical Specialties building, a "portable" building constructed in three sections, has been assigned to the School of Dentistry and will be moved at a later date.

Land left vacant by the removal of the structures will be landscaped.

Also scheduled for demolition is the old Tropical and Preventive Medicine building.

Bill of Rights Day Celebrated By La Sierra Campus Students

La Sierra campus students are joining other southern California universities and colleges in celebrating a Bill of Rights Day today.

A special 10:30 a.m. convocation was arranged during which students and the community participated in commemoration of the Bill of Rights. Following the United States Air Force color guard's presentation of the flag, patriotic music was played by the University Band. Wilfred J. Airey, PhD, professor of history, spoke on "What Is Happening to Our Freedom Today." A short skit, "George Mason," adapted by Gregory Lundquist, sophomore English major, and Monte C. Sahlin, sophomore theology major, from the television program "Profiles In Courage," depicted the history of the Bill of Rights. A film from the Freedom Foundation was shown.

At 12:30 p.m. a "pray-in" was held in Matheson Chapel. Before they separated into small prayer groups, students were urged by the Bill of Rights committee to pray for subjugated people of the world.

This evening groups of students will meet to discuss current topics of interest such as student power, race relations and the draft. At 6 p.m. C. Gary Hullquist, sophomore biology major, will lead in a sing-out on the mall. Students will join in singing freedom and protest songs.

Former LLU Trustees Chairman Dies After Extended Illness

Former chairman of the Loma Linda University Board of Trustees Walter P. Elliott died last month in his Redlands home after a long illness. He was 75.

During his nine-year tenure as trustee chairman, Loma Linda University established the School of Dentistry and Graduate School, and constructed the present White Memorial Medical Center, Los Angeles.

Mr. Elliott served simultaneously as chairman of the trustees of Pacific Press Publishing Association, a Seventh-day Adventist publishing house located in Mountain View, California.

During his 42 years as Seventh-day Adventist pastor-evangelist, he held positions as superintendent of the church's Haiti mission; president of its 11,000-member Potomac Conference; publishing department secretary of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists; and general manager of the Review and Herald Publishing Association, an east coast publishing house owned and operated by the Adventist Church.

A native of Chicago, he was educated at Bethel Academy, Arpin, Wisconsin, and Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan.

Mr. Elliott is survived by his wife, Alice Garton Elliott, and one daughter, Mrs. I. L. Dew, of Newport, Rhode Island.

Funeral services were held Friday, November 10, in the University Church, Loma Linda.

A Modern Priest Looks at His Outdated Church

by Father James Kavanaugh
Reviewed by R. Bruce Wilcox, PhD.
Assistant Professor of Biochemistry

This is not a happy book. Father Kavanaugh is deeply troubled by his experience as a Roman Catholic priest. His exasperation, anger and guilt are fully expressed in the pages.

His most persistent complaint is that the church has taken Christ away from her people and substituted laws and a system in His place. The example best known to non-Catholics (a term which Father Kavanaugh decries) is probably birth-control. Father Kavanaugh's comment in the first chapter sets the tone for all that follows. "We do not need a solution to the birth-control problem. We need freedom from a system that has taken over our lives. We need freedom from a legalistic Church that has transformed the simplicity of a personal and Christ's love into a world of fear and guilt." Later in the same chapter he declares, "I can neither be silent nor a legalist any longer. So I will protest with words that are written in the memory of the senseless suffering I have known and seen, and this book is the account of that anguished protest."

Anguished Protest

As might be expected of a book of "anguished protest" there is little logical argument here. Father Kavanaugh convinces by detailing the pitiful case-histories he draws from memory interspersed with cries of protest and angry questions directed toward his superiors. He covers other areas of Catholic life in the same explosive manner.

The education of priests: "I was not educated, I was formed. I was not encouraged to think, but trained to defend. I was not asked to reflect, but to memorize."

Catholic laymen: "The Catholic man is an organized answering service whose first obligation is to protect his Church. He is not concerned with overpopulation, but only with guarding the Catholic position on the pill. He is not troubled about public education, but only about the growth of Catholic schools. He seldom spends time with programs of mental health or housing or city government, unless Catholic value will ultimately thrive. Thus, in every social reform Catholic support has always been joined to the ca-boose."

Legalism

Legalism: "God is not dead, Catholic theology is! And even the modern efforts are too feeble and too gentle to bring it back to life. The legalist rules! He is the man who solves every doubt by a new and narrow law. He insists on reducing every truth, no matter how complex, to the simple and manageable. He pouted at the Vatican Council and shackled the reformation of my Church. He frightens the bishops in their conferences and makes them quibble so they

Education Professor Speaks At LSC Senior Presentation

Two hundred and ten seniors in the College of Arts and Sciences marched in full academic dress at senior presentation on December 7 to make their first official public appearance as candidates for degrees.

Earl V. Pullias, PhD, professor of higher education at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, addressed the seniors on "A Search for Fundamentals in a Time of Change." He challenged the class to "strive to teach and live the sweet way of love, Christian love, the greatest of all human life. Expectations of men everywhere have risen. Dreams of what man ought to be and can be have awakened man and he cannot set these dreams to rest . . . No one will achieve all the attributes set forth today. We can only grow toward them. We will become a part of the new humanity."

The invocation was given by Norval F. Pease, PhD, professor of religion. Alonzo L. Baker, PhD, professor of political science and class sponsor, read the scripture. Ralph L. Kooreny, PhD, academic dean, presented the class of 1968 to David J. Bieber, president of Loma Linda University, who officially recognized the class for the first time.

The 1968 senior class was led by Paul R. Meier, president, and Joan M. Hoatson, vice president. Other officers are Dona R. Scuka, secretary, Rodney D. Francis, treasurer, and Daniel L. Rathbun, pastor.

DRESSED in academic regalia, the 210 seniors from the College of Arts and Sciences prepare for their first official public appearance. Guest speaker was Earl V. Pullias, PhD, professor of higher education at University of Southern California.

Federal Aid to Education

Over the past few years, Loma Linda University has experienced a building program that is without precedent in the Seventh-day Adventist denomination. Because of the consolidation of the Los Angeles campus on the Loma Linda campus and to keep pace with the growing demands on medical education, it was necessary to build the new University Hospital complex, the Graduate School building, the biochemistry building, the new gymnasium, and the addition to Lindsay Hall.

Increased enrollment in the undergraduate programs on the La Sierra campus necessitated the construction of a new food service and student center, the eight-story men's residence hall, and the nearly completed home economics building.

The financial problems of institutions of higher education are unlike those of industry. Colleges and universities do not operate like private corporations. On the contrary, they sell their two primary services — teaching and research — at a loss.

It is safe to say that the Loma Linda University student, or for that matter, any student in any institution, pays only a fraction of the cost of his education.

Where do the additional funds necessary to run a college or university come from? Trusts, individual donations, grants from private industry, and contributions from various organizations. The union conferences and the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists have helped immeasurably by providing funds to our institutions.

In the next few years Loma Linda University and other Seventh-day Adventist institutions will need substantial funds for capital purposes. Building plans at Loma Linda University call for additional housing for men and women, new classroom units, additional library space, and a new auditorium.

Who will pay for these much needed improvements? Can the Seventh-day Adventist church continue to finance Adventist higher education with its ever-increasing price tag?

It appears that there are two major sources of funds open to Adventist educational institutions for capital improvements — from within the church, or from the federal government and private sources.

Traditionally, the Seventh-day Adventist Church has declined federal aid for its institutions. This has been because of fears related to our concept of separation between the church and the state, and because of questions of government control of private institutions.

The experience of educators who have been working with federal money for years — that Washington has never dictated what or how to teach — is encouraging more and more colleges and universities around the country to look to Washington for the solution to their financial problems.

Where will Adventist institutions of higher education turn for additional funds needed in the coming years? We hope it will not have to be to Washington.

The "Critter" Goes Home

Two-campus news coverage proved to be an elusive goal last week when The Criterion announced that it is going home to stay.

The problem of equal coverage for both University campuses became apparent recently when a small group of Loma Linda campus students burned several hundred copies of the "Critter" in protest over an alleged lack of Loma Linda campus news by the La Sierra based newspaper.

Until last week, the Associated Students of the La Sierra campus had been providing The Criterion to Loma Linda campus students at no charge contrary to popular opinion on the Loma Linda campus.

In order to help alleviate the Loma Linda campus news shortage, the University SCOPE will be distributed on a slightly increased publication schedule on the Loma Linda campus beginning next month.

Letters

To the Editor

Dear Editor:

Over the past nine months to one year there have appeared occasional articles in the University SCOPE outlining the recent changes in the School of Medicine curriculum. These have been of great interest to me and I only wish I were closer at hand to observe them more directly.

The most refreshing part of these descriptions has been the information which has allowed me to compare the curriculum changes with those of other universities. I think that the dean and his curriculum committee are to be applauded for putting Loma Linda University's School of Medicine in the forefront of medical education by these changes.

Recent descriptions in medical and paramedical journals have indicated that other schools including Western Reserve Uni-

College Entrance Examination Membership Granted to LLU

Loma Linda University was accepted into membership on the College Entrance Examination Board at a recent business meeting of the board in Chicago. This increases western membership in the College Board to 83 colleges and universities.

The College Board is a national association of 782 public and independent colleges and universities, 238 secondary schools, and 88 associations.

Established in 1900 to aid in the transition of students from high school to college, its activities include administering various kinds of guidance and admissions tests to about two million students yearly.

The board also conducts extensive research programs, publishes numerous books and studies, carries out training projects for college admissions and guidance officers, and operates the College Scholarship Service and the Advanced Placement Program.

The old Loma Linda Sanitarium and Hospital, built between 1924 and 1929, was officially opened for use on March 20, 1929. The total cost for the structure was $200,000.

Additions to the main structure were made in 1949 with the completion of the surgical unit, in 1953 with the building of the surgical-maternity wing, in 1952 with the construction of the clinical laboratory, and in 1957 when the X-ray department was added.

Sears-Roebuck Foundation Awards $1,000 Grant to LLU

The Sears-Roebuck Foundation gave Loma Linda University $1,000 recently.

The check, part of the foundation's $1-million annual contribution to privately supported colleges and universities was presented by Joseph Sadacca, manager of the Inland Center Sears store and local representative of the foundation. The gift was accepted by David J. Bieber, president of the University.

In announcing the distribution of the 1967 grants, Mr. Sadacca reported that 46 participating colleges and universities in California will share in grants totaling $66,450. Purpose of the program is to systematically help institutions of higher learning meet their financial needs, he said.

Altogether more than 600 colleges and universities from coast to coast will receive Sears Foundation grants. They are unrestricted, allowing the schools to allocate their funds according to the greatest needs.

In addition to its grant program, the foundation during the current year will spend more than $900,000 for a variety of scholarship and other types of education programs, bringing its total expenditures for higher education purposes this year to more than $1.9-million, Mr. Sadacca announced.

KSDA Purchases New Transmitter

A 1,000 watt transmitter has been purchased from the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, by KSDA, the University's FM radio station located on the La Sierra campus.

With this transmitter KSDA hopes to have better coverage of the marginal reception areas such as Loma Linda, according to Donald D. Dick, PhD, associate professor of speech and general manager of KSDA.

Students from the KSDA staff disassembled the transmitter to get it out a window of the building in which it was located at USC. The transmitter was first used in 1939 during the San Francisco Worlds Fair.

KSDA is working on "Operation Think Big" to relocate the transmitters so coverage will reach Los Angeles as well as La Sierra and Loma Linda.

History Professor Authors International Relations Paper

Gary M. Ross, PhD, assistant professor of history, has written the first in a series of scholarly papers on international relations, according to Frederick G. Hoyt, PhD, chairman of the history and political science department. The first report was published in Research Studies, a journal printed by Washington State University, Pullman, Washington.

Entitled, "Mosquito Indians and Anglo-American Diplomacy," the paper relates an incident that took place in the town of Bluefields, Nicaragua, in 1894. At that time the English armed forces landed on Nicaraguan soil in spite of the "Monroe Doctrine," and sought a settlement of some internal problems concerning the nation of Nicaragua and the semi-autonomous Mosquito Indians.

Even though United States forces did not become involved in the incident, Dr. Ross states that "the United States remained attentive to British activity. It upheld the paramount sovereignty of Nicaragua over the disputed region with a steadfastness that must be cited as an example of American resolution, not weakness or indifference, in the conduct of foreign affairs."

As part of his responsibilities in the history and political science department, Dr. Ross is engaged in research and writing on various topics in the field of the history of diplomacy. Future articles are expected to be published by the same journal.

Tax Shelters Benefit You And Your University

Are you dreading the end of the year and the 1967 TAX BITE? Making your gift to Loma Linda University before December 31 can help you save TAX DOLLARS. The University offers a valuable service to its alumni and friends through Estate Planning. Study the tax shelters described below to find one which fits your situation.

SHORT-TERM TRUST

A short-term trust provides for a temporary transfer of income-producing assets to a charitable organization such as Loma Linda University with these benefits:

1. The donor's current taxable income is reduced. He is not accountable for income produced by the assets while they are in trust.
2. With such income assigned to the University, the donor, in effect, may make gifts even beyond the ordinarily allowable 30% of adjusted gross income with the same effect as full deductibility.
3. The assets revert to the donor at the end of the trust term. Their subsequent income is thus preserved for retirement or other future use.

FAMILY SECURITY GROWTH PLAN

Provides a desirable retirement plan and offers present savings program which can reduce taxes, give security to your family, provide independence, and help build Loma Linda University while benefiting from a steady growth factor.

OUTRIGHT GIFT

During heavy income years an outright gift to Loma Linda University with the one year deduction plus five year carry-over allowance may be the wisest kind of approach to tax savings and philanthropic support.

BARGAIN SALE

An individual can realize a greater profit in many situations if he enters into a bargain sale arrangement with a charitable institution rather than disposing of the appreciated property on the open market. Here the property is sold to the charity at the owner's original cost. The owner is thus eligible to claim a charitable deduction for the difference between his selling price and the market value of the property transferred. For example, if you sell a block of stock worth $10,000 to the University for $2,000 (your cost), you get a charitable contribution deduction of $8,000 ($10,000 value less $2,000 received). The higher your tax bracket, the more you benefit.

School of Public Health Voted Into Full ASPH Membership

Loma Linda University School of Public Health was voted in as the 16th full member of the Association of Schools of Public Health at a meeting in Miami Beach.

Full accreditation was granted the school on June 23 by action of the executive board of the American Public Health Association. Mervyn G. Hardinge, MD, DrPH, is dean of the school assisted by Richard T. Walden, MD, assistant dean, and P. William Dysinger, MD, assistant to the dean.

Organization of the new school was authorized by a 1964 University Board of Trustees action and has been under development since that time. Instruction under its new status began July 1.

The Graduate School will continue to offer master of science degrees for those interested in an academic degree with specialization in one area of public health.

will not have to act. He binds the pastor, intimidates the parish priest. He can condemn a book without reading it, ban a movie without seeing it, and make a law without explaining it to men."

Confession: "Our confessional becomes a travesty when we compare it to the Christian vision of pardon. Christ promised freedom and we offer imprisonment and guilt. Christ spoke of joy and we offer only a break in tension to be followed by a more painful relapse."

Love

Rules of courtship: "In reducing a profound area of human experience to a set of rules, we somehow manage to take away the conscience of the young Catholic and substitute the sexual hangup . . . Love is not afraid of discipline, it thrives on it, it learns to respect it even as it grows. It is, however, as unique in each case as the two people that make up the custom-made union."

Divorce: "The Church is not keeping marriages together, people are. To say that men would lose their balance if the law governing the permanence of marriage were more humble and honest is to lose faith in man's capacity to love. Man wants to marry once, to remain married for life, to enjoy his children's children. We do not have to command this; we only have to show him how."

Parochial Schools

Parochial schools: "They (the bishops) continue to build more schools, when they should bury them because this is a new and exciting era in the Church. Pope John lived with us long enough to tell us that we can join the rest of the world in a search for vision and value. Even the fears of Pope Paul, the foot-dragging of Vatican II, and the largely irrelevant concerns of our American bishops in their recent conference cannot dull the

University Hospital Chaplain Conducts Ten-Week Course

University Hospital chaplain supervisor Charles W. Teel recently concluded a 10-week clinical training course for members of the Redlands Ministerial Association who will serve as chaplains in the Redlands Community Hospital, Redlands.

George A. DeLang, administrator of the Redlands hospital, requested that the ministerial association start a program of careful and dependable coverage of the spiritual needs of the hospital patients, according to Chaplain Teel. The pastors will minister to the needs of the patients in a crisis and they can use the hospital as an evangelistic base to "steel members."

The course ran for 10 weeks, meeting for three hours one day a week. During the last five weeks the nursing supervisors of the hospital were invited to the meetings to participate in the discussions and to become acquainted with the ministers.

The final meeting was held at the University Hospital at the invitation of C. Victor Way, hospital administrator. The ministers and nursing supervisors toured the hospital and observed the chaplains' program in operation.

Chaplain Teel has been asked to make available a refresher course for those ministers who were unable to attend the first program. Mr. DeLang stated that only those ministers completing the chaplain's course will be able to participate in the new program at the Redlands Community Hospital.

Public Health Director Warns Of Unusual Health Hazards

Noise is beginning to have a serious impact on the health of the general population of the United States, warns Lester Breslow, MD, director of preventative medical services of the California State Department of Public Health.

Speaking to a seminar group last month in the School of Public Health on "The Outlook for Health in California—1975," Dr. Breslow stated that "the conditions of life in our environment and our habits of living largely determine which diseases we get and when we die. Barely have we started to control air pollution when another man-made condition — noise — is beginning to have a serious impact on health. Formerly a problem for only a few people in certain industries noise has become a significant factor in general community health."

Even medical environment can have an adverse influence on health, according to Dr. Breslow. "Too much oxygen for premature babies may cause blindness, and certain drugs taken by pregnant women have resulted in malformed infants. Our increasing power to manipulate the environment in which we live must be applied with greater and greater caution if we are to protect human health."

University, Cleveland, Ohio; Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts; and Duke University, Durham, North Carolina, have made changes similar to those we are making at Loma Linda.

It is most important to remember that in contrast to the fear which some have expressed that we are "following the world," perhaps we are helping to "lead the world" and this should be our attempt in all fields of education.

The fear that the changes will produce less missionary minded doctors for our world wide work should be hastily stifled. On the contrary, it may produce, if not more doctors, those that are better qualified.

University President Speaks At Loma Linda Convocation

Editor's note: The following article is an edited version of the speech delivered by University president David J. Bieber at the President's Convocation held in the Loma Linda University Church November 19.

As I view the audience this evening I am impressed that we have a heterogenous crowd. This is somewhat challenging for it presents to me the possibility of shooting in all directions hoping I may be successful in scoring a bull's eye at some point or another.

In my efforts to bring to you a report of past developments, present happenings, and future plans, I do so with the complete cognizance of a foundation well laid by my predecessor and esteemed fellow educator, Dr. Godfrey T. Anderson. To do what he has done has required the combined qualities of faith, courage, fortitude, vision, patience, and wisdom — all of which he so admirably displayed during his 13 years as president of Loma Linda University.

In the year 1961, the trustees, upon the recommendation of the president and the faculty of the College of Medical Evangelists, voted to change the name of the College of Medical Evangelists, and all of its activities in various geographic areas to Loma Linda University. This seemed rather fitting and appropriate, for the activities of the institution had proliferated in many directions and the former designation appeared no longer to describe the diverse programs.

The Graduate School, begun in 1954, had developed to where it became a significant activity of the institution. The geographic division of medical activities on two campuses proved to be a continuous handicap and thus the Trustees voted in 1962 to consolidate all medical education of the University on the Loma Linda campus. This was a bold and significant action and fraught with extreme hazards for the University. Immediate and wise plans were formulated for the construction of our now existing University Hospital which houses first-rate patient care, clinical teaching facilities and experiences, and space for medical research. Certainly today there is ample and conclusive evidence that the action of the Trustees in 1962 was well-advised and without question prompted by the Lord.

Merger

This was not to be the end of major and bold decisions, however. Recognizing an imperative need for greatly expanded undergraduate offerings in the liberal arts, the University administration and the Trustees sought ways and means of providing for the University a complete undergraduate liberal arts program. Two alternatives seemed to be in evidence. The first and ideal solution was the development of a small but strong program of undergraduate liberal arts offerings on the Loma Linda campus. This seemed particularly attractive since the medical activities were in the process of consolidation on one campus. The second alternative was to merge with, and bring within the University structure, an ongoing liberal arts college. This second alternative was not a new idea, but the thought of a divided campus seemed impractical and rather distasteful for some obvious reasons. However, after careful and thoughtful study a committee requested by the Trustees and appointed by the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, brought a report to various segments of the two constituencies representing Loma Linda University and La Sierra College, favoring the merger of the two institutions into one organic unit known as Loma Linda University. Final action was taken at a duly called meeting of the Loma Linda University constituency on April 23, 1967, which fully approved the merger. This was a most significant action and implementation of the action began on July 1, 1967.

University Structure

The merged University is now academically structured to include seven schools and one division — Division of Religion. These segments of the University are quasi-autonomous units with a dean responsible for the specific programs within the school and with lines of reporting and responsibility to the vice president for academic affairs. The schools, with supporting description, are as follows:

School of Arts and Sciences. This school, or college, as it may be designated, is operating on the La Sierra campus. Within this school are 18 departments offering baccalaureate degrees. In addition to the baccalaureate programs, there are a number of Associate in Arts programs including nursing education. A total of 155 students are in the Associate in Arts nursing curriculum only in its second year. The clinical facilities of Paradise Valley Sanitarium and Hospital and White Memorial Medical Center are used for this program.

The faculty, numbering 133 in the School of Arts and Sciences is well qualified with 47 holders of a final degree. Although teaching is the primary business of the Arts and Sciences faculty, several significant research projects are going on and findings are published. Teacher education, on the undergraduate as well as graduate levels, is a significant part of the La Sierra campus program. A total of 855 students have been graduated over the past five years from La Sierra College.

The Graduate School offers programs in various fields of liberal arts, basic sciences and nutrition, and in clinical specialties of dentistry and nursing. Six of these programs lead to the degree master of arts, 15 to the degree master of science, and five to the degree doctor of philosophy.

School of Medicine. The School of Medicine now housed in the University Hospital has a total of 345 students with 101 first-year students having been accepted into the school this fall. There are 131 full-time and 25 part-time faculty members, and in addition, there are approximately 600 voluntary faculty members from the local and Los Angeles areas. The school operates with 24 departments and sections. The full-time faculty are provided offices, clinical facilities, and laboratories for research in the University Hospital.

The School of Dentistry. This school enjoys an enrollment of 326 students, with 64 of these as dental hygiene students and 30 in graduate programs. In addition to these students, some 500 are enrolled in continuing education courses.

Clive F. Possinger, Jr., '65, and his family left for Bangkok, Thailand, October 10. Dr. Possinger will serve on the staff of the Bangkok Sanitarium and Hospital. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Columbia Union College, Washington, D.C.

George M. Grames, '60, recently accepted a position with the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital, Washington, D.C., as associate director of medical education. For the past three years, Dr. Grames has specialized in internal medicine at Ireland Army Hospital, Fort Knox, Kentucky.

A. Norton Donaldson, '43, was guest lecturer on "Kidney and Urinary Tract Infections, Warning Signals in Children," at the Orange County Health Department in Santa Ana recently.

Dr. Donaldson is co-chairman of the medical advisory board for the Orange County Kidney Foundation.

A new innovation this year is that we have dental hygiene students working directly with dental students and their patients. This has been made possible by a supplemental research grant.

The School of Nursing. This is the oldest school of the University and enjoys an enrollment of 217 students on both levels, undergraduate and graduate. A close relationship has been developed with the nursing service in the hospital whereby the director of nursing service, who has faculty rank, reports to the dean of the School of Nursing. This coordinated plan is useful to both the academic and the service segments of the school and the hospital. Plans are for a master of arts in psychiatric nursing in the fall of 1968, and for a licensed vocational nursing program to begin early in the same year. This will give the University a complete spectrum of offerings in nursing education — the LVN, the AA, the baccalaureate and the master's degree in nursing.

The School of Health Related Professions. This school is one of thirteen schools of allied professions in the nation and the only one west of the Mississippi. The school is composed of departments of physical therapy, occupational therapy, medical technology, radiological technology, and medical records administration. There is an enrollment this year of 161 students. It is currently operating in the former hospital. The school also operates in close cooperation with the related areas in the University Hospital.

New School

The School of Public Health. This is the newest of the schools on the Loma Linda campus. In June of 1967 full accreditation was granted to the school by the American Public Health Association, and on July 1, 1967, the new school was officially launched. United in it are the former School of Nutrition and Dietetics, the department of preventive medicine of the School of Medicine, and the division of public health and preventive medicine. On October 22, 1967, the School of Public Health was accepted as a full member into the Association of Schools of Public Health, the sixteenth school in this Association.

Finances

A great deal has been said recently of the declining financial strength of institutions of higher learning. Educational institutions are obviously not designed for financial profit, but it is comforting when these institutions enjoy good financial health. Both campuses enjoyed an operating gain, however small, again this past fiscal period. This is a tremendous record for a transition year and considering a total annual combined operating budget of $21,275,000. Tuition and other expenses have obviously been rising with the spiraling economy of the country. Yet for the undergraduate student it requires fewer working hours to earn tuition today than forty years ago. In 1927 it took 1,760 hours to earn tuition and expenses at the rate of $.25 per hour, while today at the rate of $1.40 per hour, 1,440 hours are required. In the School of Arts and Sciences, students pay approximately 85 percent of the operating costs and the balance is provided from operating subsidies from the parent organizations and other gifts.

The net worth of the University currently stands at slightly in excess of $26,000,000. Approximately one third of this represents the La Sierra campus holdings.

Student Affairs

With the merger of the two campuses a new office, that of vice president for student affairs, was created. This becomes extremely important at a time of student unrest on all university campuses. Appropriate activities, including social, cultural, physical, and spiritual, must be planned and implemented to provide opportunity for student involvement and need. Currently a total of 1,494 students reside in the nine dormitories under the general direction of the vice president for student affairs. Testing and counseling, student placement, recreation, and student organizations all come under the administration of this office.

Public Relations

In presenting the University to its various publics, a carefully chosen and competent staff carries on a consistent and diligent program of disseminating information. The officer responsible for this activity and function is the vice president for public relations and development. The University paper, University SCOPE, and the University Magazine are produced by this office.

Of special interest is the fund raising function. A well qualified staff distributed throughout the North American Division is constantly at work promoting deferred giving, receiving grants, and contacting alumni for interests pertaining to the University. Gifts totaling significant figures have been and are being received to provide financial security for the University.

The Foundation

Currently the Loma Linda Foundation representing the investment arm of the University is not an integral part of the organizational structure of the University as an institution. It is a function of the University as a corporation and the vice president for the corporation and manager of the foundation report directly to the president of the corporation who is also chairman of the board. This office has a well qualified staff to manage properties and investments.

Current plans under study, if implemented, would place this office and function under the president of the University comparable to the other activities and programs.

Capital Improvements

Remarkable progress has been made in the past few years in the replacement of obsolete and worn out buildings, or in providing additional buildings and facilities on both campuses. On the Loma Linda campus the outstanding project is obviously the new $20,000,000 University Hospital complex. The addition to Lindsay Hall, the graduate building, the chemistry building and now the new gymnasium, dot the campus with new and modern facilities. On the La Sierra campus, the new food service and student center known as the Commons, the new mall, the new eight-story high-rise men's dormitory, the new physical maintenance plant, and now the nearly completed home economics building modernize the appearance and efficiency of the campus. These combined projects represent costs approximating $26,000,000.

Future plans call for additional buildings on both campuses. A new modern library, additional housing for women, additional classroom units, completion of the physical education complex — all are immediate needs on the La Sierra campus. On the Loma Linda campus added dormitory space for men, additional library space, a new auditorium, addition to the dental building and other additions must be made in the near future.

A University - wide campus planning committee has been structured to give continuous study to the physical needs of the University and to give guidance in the orderly development of its campuses.

To conclude this report, I wish to point out three problems which require serious study by the University administration, the faculty, the Trustees, and the parent organizations.

To what extent is it possible to provide for the increasing numbers of Seventh-day Adventist students with diverse interests, aptitudes, capacities, and aspirations who are seeking diverse programs in a Seventh-day Adventist environment?

Diversity is the key word in American higher education, and the success has been to a large extent according to the ability of institutions to fit students to programs and programs to students.

In a current study of Seventh-day Adventist young people of college age, within the four California conferences of the Pacific Union, it was found that approximately 1,500 Seventh-day Adventist young people of college age are currently (a) not in college at all, (b) in a non-Seventh-day Adventist junior college, or (c) in a non-Seventh-day Adventist four-year college or university. According to responses to a questionnaire from a significant group of these young people, it was found that 74% graduated from a Seventh-day Adventist academy. We were anxious to discover why these young people are not in a Seventh-day Adventist college or university. Although lack of finances was highest on the list, other reasons indicated that possibly we are not currently providing sufficient diversity of offerings and levels of expectancy to attract more of these young people.

Is the church able and willing to continue to finance Seventh-day Adventist higher education with an ever-increasing price tag? Or must we turn to other sources for added funds?

Currently it appears Loma Linda University will be able to manage the operational costs with normal increases in tuition and other charges to students and normal increases in subsidies from the parent organizations. The University will not, however, be able to continue to provide the physical facilities required to meet increasing demands by increasing numbers of students and demands by changes in our fast-changing and moving world, unless we receive additional monies for capital improvements. As I mentioned previously, the University on its two campuses has expended an amount of $26,000,000 during the past few years for new buildings and facilities. A good portion of this expansion has been accomplished on borrowed money and needs to be amortized over a period of three to 20 years. An additional amount of possibly $10,000,000 needs to be spent during the next five to ten years. It appears there are two courses open to us: (1) to expect and get more money from within the Church, or (2) to turn to the federal government or other private sources for capital aid.

Future Funds

The Pacific Union Conference and the General Conference have done extremely well in providing funds for capital purposes. It is doubtful that these organizations will be able to increase substantially their giving during the foreseeable years. It is possible that a program of special giving by our church members could be launched. Failing to do so might make it necessary to turn to the gov-

A THRIVING 100-bed mission hospital, the Sopas Medical Training Center, Wabag, New Guinea, operates a school of nursing, school of public health, and an agricultural school. The General Conference Medical Department offers many opportunities for service in foreign countries.

General Conference Placement

So you're a nurse! You're looking for a different, challenging location!! Well, perhaps you would consider one of the places from which calls come for the services you are prepared to give. In war-torn Saigon, or in Ethiopia, Libya, Nigeria, Ghana, Kenya, Orange Free State, or Uganda, a choice may be made. A position as worker in a hospital, or as director of nursing service, or as an instructor: these are the offerings made in these areas.

To physicians also, many of the calls are repeated and some are urgent. For general practitioners: these countries are needing you; Okinawa, Taiwan, Trinidad, British Honduras, Nigeria, Ethiopia, India, Nepal, Camerons, Rwanda, Kenya, Tanzania, Nyasaland; sixteen in all. To surgeons there are eight requests, two for Thailand, (a relief and one for August 1968); one in Indonesia; two in Libya, (a relief and a board surgeon); one in Nigeria; two in India, (a medical director - surgeon and a board surgeon if possible). An anesthesiologist is needed in India; and two internists, one in Taiwan, and a relief for May 1968 in Libya.

Again we place the call for a pharmacist for Nigeria.

We appeal to the physically fit, the brave, the dedicated volunteers who have been impressed to offer themselves to the needs of their fellow men. There is no greater work than to help those who would not receive aid if this help is not given. Your reward is the satisfaction of service rendered and the gratitude received in return.

How grateful the recipients are for the many who have made themselves available and have gone or are preparing to go to positions in lands afar.

ernment as do a large majority of institutions of higher learning across the country.

The church has traditionally believed that it is unwise to seek and accept government funds. Two reasons have often been given. First, our belief in the separation of church and state, and second, the fear of government control. The principle upon which we have built a wall of separation between church and state is actually based on a man-made document, the American Constitution, which can be amended and changed. As a church we strongly feel the government should not interfere in the realm of religion and vice versa, and the civil rights should not conflict with our beliefs, but this does not necessarily mean we should not accept government assistance, particularly for capital purposes. There appears to be no evidence of government control where government loans or grants have been made, or perhaps we might state there is no strong evidence that controls have come because of financial assistance.

It is not my purpose to argue that we should accept government aid, but I do feel that serious continued study must be given to this question, and it might be that acceptance is legitimate and safe and no particular violation of our time-honored principles of separation

Gyn-Ob Professor Quizzes Colleagues

William G. Slate, MB, ChB, professor of gynecology and obstetrics, participated recently in the examination of candidates for certification by the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology in Chicago.

There were approximately 900 candidates and 120 examiners from medical schools including prominent gynecologists in practice throughout the country.

Several members of the faculty of the department of gynecology and obstetrics at Loma Linda University were among the candidates. Announcement will be made within the next few weeks of those candidates who were found to be qualified.

of church and state. If, indeed, this avenue of additional financial resources could be opened, it would go a long way in solving our needs for added funds for capital purposes. If not, the church constituency will need to give greater support to our educational program, and this course might be preferable. If neither of the two courses develops well, we will be in trouble.

Mounting Pressures

Is it possible to continue to adhere to our traditional Christian philosophy and objectives under mounting pressures for conformity to the present day demands?

I shall hasten quickly to say if we are not able nor willing to adhere to our declared philosophy and stated objectives, we'd better get out of the business. There are many institutions with tax dollar support who can do the job the ordinary institution of higher learning does. The purpose of our Seventh-day Adventist institutions is different however; and unless we are willing to be different and do a specific job for the church and society as a whole, we will have failed. There is no accrediting agency that really has a right to tell us what to do, but accrediting groups may have a right to tell us how to do in order to fulfill our objectives. The general public has no right to ask us to change our objectives. Individual church members have no right to ask us to denounce our objectives except as it is done through appropriate organizational channels. On the contrary, church members have a right to expect us to adhere to that which we have stated as objectives and purposes.

I wish to give you my unconditional pledge to do all within my power, under the blessings of the Almighty, and with the help of my associates, to continue to administer in such a way as to bring about a meaningful merger for the upbuilding of a great Seventh-day Adventist university. We covet your continued support and prayers.

La Sierra Students Give Toys To Korean Orphans

Approximately 350 orphans at the Cross Orphanage in Pusan, Korea, received 422 pounds of toys from the Korean Action Program sponsored by the La Sierra campus Collegiate Christian League and KSDA, the University FM radio station.

The Seventh-day Adventist Welfare Service, Inc., of Korea paid for shipping the crate of toys which left November 17 on the SS Steel Architect. It arrived in Korea December 11.

Cross Orphanage is a Christian institution that cares for the deserted and homeless children of Korea. It was founded by Shim Chung Sup, a veteran of the Army of the Republic of Korea.

An elementary and junior high school are now located on the orphanage grounds. Finding food and clothing is still a big worry for Mr. Sup, according to Laurita L. K. Neal, La Sierra campus sophomore and chairman of the Korean Action Program Committee.

The Korean government provides rice for the orphans while the Seventh-day Adventist Welfare Service has made available clothing and some United States government's surplus food. Funds also come from the Foster Parents Plan of New York City.

CHRISTMAS is in the air at Loma Linda University. Sophomore School of Nursing student Mona L. Mason arranges the Christmas display for the Lindsay Hall chapel.

Artist and Lecture Series Features Finnish Lecturer

Loma Linda University will host Hjordis Kittel Parker in a guest lecture about Finland, Saturday, January 13.

The lecture, scheduled for 8 p.m. in Burden Hall on the Loma Linda campus is the fourth event in the University's Artist and Lecture Series.

Tickets for the program will be sold at the door for $1.

Mrs. Parker, by virtue of her Scandinavian background and heritage, is well qualified to convey to her audiences a realistic insight into the lives of the people of Finland and has also captured the natural beauty and resources of the county on film.

Her lecture will show how the Finnish forests, the country's main natural resources, play a vital role in the lives of the Finnish people during the four seasons of the year.

Vietnam Veterans' Benefits Listed

A new bill recently passed by Congress for Vietnam veterans who are full time students took effect last October 1, states Herbert A. Walls, Loma Linda campus registrar.

The new bill raises payments from $100 to $130 a month to single veterans; from $125 to $155 to veterans with one dependent; and from $150 to $175 to veterans with two dependents.

For each additional dependent an added payment of $10 is made, according to Mr. Walls.

LLU Service League Fall Dinner Held

Mrs. Billie Thompson, volunteer coordinator at Orthopaedic Hospital, Los Angeles, was the guest speaker for the Fall Dinner of the Loma Linda University Hospital Volunteer Service League, held in the campus cafeteria Monday, October 23. Mrs. Bernard D. Briggs, league president, presided.

Mrs. Harold D. Walton, treasurer, reported that gifts valued at $13,731.78 have been donated to the hospital by the volunteer organization since 1960. The latest of these include the pictures for the new as well as the old hospital, the television sets, and hospital cafeteria linen. Almost $1,000 was spent in moving and refinishing the large wall plaque in the main lobby of the hospital. Another $1,000 was spent in furnishing one private room, plus $2,000 in providing furniture for other private rooms. The television sets were a $6,000 item. Other areas helped include pediatrics, dietary service, teaching clinic, and gift-shop remodeling.

Former Professor Teaches in Trinidad

M. J. Sorenson, PhD, former associate professor of history, left recently for Port of Spain, Trinidad, where he will teach at the Caribbean Union College for the school year.

For seven years Dr. Sorenson taught in the religion and history departments on the La Sierra campus. Last school year he taught in the history department of California Baptist College, Riverside.

University Offers Extension Courses

Extension courses carrying college credit will be offered by Loma Linda University at various points throughout southern California next semester, according to Vernon H. Koenig, EdD, assistant professor of education and director of the extension program.

Scheduled courses include introduction to electronics, principles of dynamic speech, and current issues in theology, studies in Ephesians, scuba diving, wilderness living and survival, the culturally disadvantaged child, speech, history of religious thought and practice, and fundamentals of public relations.

The courses will be taught in Glendale, La Sierra, Loma Linda, Garden Grove, San Diego, San Gabriel, and Los Angeles.

A brochure giving complete details of these courses may be obtained from Dr. Vernon H. Koenig, Loma Linda University, Riverside 92505.

Traditional Carol Sing Is Tonight

The sixteenth annual La Sierra campus carol sing will take place tonight at 6:15 on the front steps of the mall. Every year each dormitory and the village students prepare two songs to present to the community for judging.

Three judges will select the winner from each of the five dorms, the village students, and faculty and nursing students from Paradise Valley Sanitarium and the White Memorial Hospital. The winning group will have its name engraved on a bronze plaque that is hung in the student center trophy case.

Each group is judged on its percentage of participation, the musical quality of its production, how its members look and present themselves, and the general appearance of the group. One traditional carol and one semi-popular Christmas carol is sung by each group.

Walter E. MacPherson Society Aids School of Medicine

Alumni of the School of Medicine have made available through the Walter E. MacPherson Society $84,200 for teaching purposes in the four years of its organization.

The Walter E. MacPherson Society, organized in 1964, provides an avenue through which alumni of the School of Medicine can contribute to the school.

Two objectives of the Society are to provide assistance in improving the undergraduate teaching program by financial support and fraternal association.

Membership is open to all members of the Alumni Association with yearly dues of $100. Other categories are open through which larger payment may be made. Total of funds received since the society's inception is $90,247.

Funds are used exclusively for aid to the undergraduate teaching program within the School of Medicine. Specific expenditures are the following: the supplementing of salaries for faculty members, the purchase of equipment to aid teaching, and the establishment of professional chairs in key departments.

In 1965 the first professorial chair was established in the School of Medicine department of biochemistry in honor of Raymond A. Mortensen, PhD, professor of biochemistry.

The Mortensen chair, the first for Loma Linda University, is to receive $15,000 annually from the Walter E. MacPherson Society to form an endowment of $100,000. The income from investment of these funds is to be made available to the department of biochemistry for professional salaries and other departmental needs.

During the first year, Society funds totaling $19,200 purchased a new IBM computer for the department of biophysics, a dictaphone for the department of medicine, a 35 mm Cine projector for the department of radiology, and photo microscopy equipment for the department of pathology.

The second allocation totaled $20,000 which was used to furnish the Roger W. Barnes amphitheater and to establish the Raymond A. Mortensen chair in the department of biochemistry.

In 1966, $22,000 was allocated to further furnish the Roger W. Barnes amphitheater and for the Mortensen Chair. Nancy C. Yost, SM '51, presented a gift of $7,000 as a memorial to her father, the late Benton N. Colver, MD, '04.

Plans are to use the $23,000 in 1967 for a memory system for the Loma Linda University computer, a device to permit superimposition of two images on eight mm film strips for teaching purposes; for making video tapes of Dr. Mortensen's lectures; for the final installment on furnishings for the Roger W. Barnes amphitheater; and for the Mortensen Chair.

The disbursement of funds from the Society is controlled by a nine-man board of directors comprised of elected officers, faculty members, and other alumni.

Officers of the Society are: Raymond B. Crawford, MD, associate professor of medicine, president; Raymond H. E. B. B. B., MD, assistant professor of medicine, vice-president; and Geneva K. Beatty, SM '37, secretary-treasurer. Alumni Association representatives are: Charles L. Anderson, SM '41; Jacob Janzen, SM '41; and Gordon W. Thompson, SM '48. Loma Linda representatives are Louis L. Smith, MD, associate professor of surgery and Varner J. Johns, MD, professor of medicine. Dr. Walter E. MacPherson is a life member of the society.
