University Trustees opt for modified LLU structure

The Loma Linda University Board of Trustees voted last week (Thursday, April 20, 1989) to develop a modified organizational structure that will allow Loma Linda University to operate as a single university on two campuses with separate accreditations.

As part of this action, the Board of Trustees voted to study the feasibility of a university structure consisting of a chancellor and two presidents — one for the Loma Linda campus and one for the La Sierra campus — with the possibility of operating with either one or two governing boards.

Neal C. Wilson, chairman of the University's Board of Trustees and president of the General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, said that the action was taken to provide protection for the academic integrity of the professional schools.

"Each of our campuses has a specific mission," Pastor Wilson said, "which will continue to be developed to the maximum."

In his comments, Pastor Wilson stated that "the board's action was taken to ensure that the mission of the professional schools located on the Loma Linda campus would not in anyway be limited, diluted, or weakened by the needs, challenges or problems faced by the La Sierra campus entities."

"I have called another meeting of the Board of Trustees for late June," Pastor Wilson says, "to take further action regarding the proposed modified organizational structure that will ensure the achievement of this important objective."

Second annual Hulda Crooks gala planned for April 30

The second annual Hulda Crooks Gala will be held on Sunday evening, April 30, 1989, at the Maruko Hotel and Convention Center in San Bernardino.

Among the celebrity guests who plan to come will be Fred Holliday, who will also be part of the evening's entertainment. Mr. Holliday appears almost daily on television, either as a spokesman for some of America's leading advertisers, or as a guest star on programs such as "Knott's Landing," "Dynasty," "Falcon Crest," "Our House," "Facts of Life," "Gimme a Break," "Love Boat," or "Riptide."

Other celebrities in attendance will include Percy Rodrigues, co-star on "Peyton Place"; Alan Koss, whose television appearances have included "Cheers," "The Golden Girls," "Falcon Crest," and the "Bronx Zoo"; and Mickey Jones, musician and singer, who has appeared on "O'Hara," "The A-Team," "The Incredible Hulk," and others.

Sponsored by Loma Linda University, proceeds from the Gala will benefit the Hulda Crooks Scholarship and Loan Fund in the School of Public Health, established on Mrs. Crook's 90th birthday, three years ago. Currently, six students receive tuition assistance each year from this fund.

At the gala, "Grandma Whitney" will be honored as she celebrates her 93rd birthday, and a special presentation of the "Hulda Crooks Award of Achievement" will be made to Suzy Katz ("Mrs. America" 1987/1988) and to Mavis Lindgren (senior marathoner). These annual awards are presented to individuals who demonstrate the importance of healthful living and are committed to achieving life's fullest potential.

Suzy Katz was successfully combining family responsibilities and a career as director of administration for a major San Francisco law firm when she won the titles of "Mrs. California" and then "Mrs. America." During her national reign from 1987 to 1988,

'Servants or Friends?' is theme of week of prayer

"Servants or Friends? Another Look at God" was the theme of the spring week of prayer on the Loma Linda campus, April 15-22, 1989. A. Graham Maxwell, PhD, emeritus professor of New Testament, School of Religion, presented the series.

Dr. Maxwell taught Bible and Biblical languages at Pacific Union College, where he was chairman of the Division of Religion. He left there to take the same position at Loma Linda in 1961.

He has written three "books of the year" for the Seventh-day Adventist church: You Can Trust the Bible, I Want to be Free, and Can God be Trusted? His favorite course has been "Biblical Theology," a year-long study of the 66 books of the Bible, a course he taught more than 100 times.

Dr. Maxwell is married to the former Rosalyn Gildersleeve.

During the week of prayer presentations, he took time at the beginning of each sermon to

Sixteenth annual Fine Arts Festival begins today

Loma Linda University's 16th annual Fine Arts Festival will feature the works of several artists, drama presentations, musical concerts, and special programs beginning Wednesday, April 26, and continuing through Sunday, April 30.

Specially featured will be the works of artist and illustrator Robert Temple Ayers, from Sunday, April 30, through May 10, in Magan Hall (the Loma Linda campus administration building). A reception for Mr. Ayers will be held Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. in Magan Hall.

Mr. Ayers is best known for his religious paintings and illustrations and his 25 years in the film industries with the MGM studios, Warner Brothers and University Studios. He spent the last 14 years working for Disney studios in Burbank.

The public is invited to attend the special reception on Sunday in Magan Hall (the Loma Linda campus administration building).

Mr. Ayers is the painter of "The Saviour" which has been reproduced and circulated internationally. Many in his series of religious paintings and illustrations have also gained worldwide recognition.

Beginning with an assignment at MGM to design the opening scenes of Ben Hur, Mr. Ayers worked in the film industry for 25 years. His paintings range from westerns to a girl in a rose garden. He most enjoys capturing landscapes, water scenes and skies.

A special "service of honor" will be held on Wednesday, April 26, at 8:10 a.m. in the University Church of Seventh-day Adventists. Honored during this service will be Marjorie Ziprick, a longtime Loma Linda resident, and a teacher of piano, organ, and musicology; James McClelland, professor of art at Union College, Lincoln, Nebraska; Ardyce Koobs, violinist, and an active member of the Loma Linda City Council; and Alan Collins, professor of art in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Other events slated during the Fine Arts Festival include "Sheep and Shepherd," an evening of music, photography, art, and narration, held Friday, April 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the La Sierra Collegiate Church, on Pierce Street in Riverside.

"A German Requiem," the choral masterpiece by Johannes Brahms, will be directed by Donald Thurber, PhD, associate professor of music, for the annual spring concert, on Saturday, April 29, at 4 p.m. in the University Church of Seventh-day Adventists, Loma Linda. Featured during this program will be the Loma Linda University Orchestra, University Church Orchestra, the University Sanctuary Choir, the La Sierra Collegiate Church Choir, and the Loma Linda

'Hulda Crooks Fitness Week' planned for April 30 - May 5

Loma Linda University has declared Sunday, April 30, through Friday, May 5, as "Hulda Crooks Fitness Week." Known as Grandma Whitney, 92-year-old Hulda has received international acclaim for her mountain climbing feats.

Health awareness day

A full schedule of events is planned during Hulda Crooks Fitness Week, beginning with Health Fair Expo '89 on Sunday, April 30, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Gentry Gymnasium on the Loma Linda campus.

Sponsored by Chevron USA, Inc, the Hospital Council of Southern California, KNBC—Channel 4, and the American Red Cross, Health Expo offers free health screenings for everyone—not just those who can't afford medical care—but those who are too busy to see a physician. The free screenings include blood pressure checks, height, weight, pulse, vision, hearing, oral check-ups, body fat measurements, fitness testing, grip strength, pulmonary function, nutritional screening, foot examination, colorectal screening, glaucoma checks, immunizations, answer questions students had written to him about the previous day's message. Dr. Maxwell's primary tenet is that God would "rather call us His friends than His servants," citing the text in John where Jesus Himself told his disciples, "I no longer call you my servants, but my friends."

Dr. Maxwell illustrated the differences between the way servants and friends view God. "Servants" often worship God out of fear of punishment, he pointed out, whereas friends want to do God's will because they trust Him, and because they have voluntarily chosen to love Him.

He encouraged the students to look at the Bible as a whole when deciding what to believe. When properly understood, the Bible does not contradict itself, Dr. Maxwell says. He also encouraged students to study the Bible and learn about who God is for themselves, for only then can they develop trust, or faith, in God.

Dr. Maxwell began the week's program with a sermon at the Campus Hill Church, "The Picture of God in all Sixty-six Books," and concluded the week at the University Church with a sermon entitled, "The Time Has Come to Talk Plainly About the Father."

health information, and much more.

Student professional volunteers from the Schools of Allied Health Professions, Dentistry, Medicine, and Nursing will staff the Expo. The screening programs will be performed by various LLU and LLUMC departments, as well as community organizations. No need to sign up or register in advance, except for the EKG stress test, for which appointments must be made by calling 824-4753. A 27-part blood panel will be available for $15.

Also on Sunday, the School of Allied Health Professions will present an "UnParade" on Stewart Street from 12 noon until 2 p.m., featuring a wide array of sports events, such as games, obstacle courses, juggling acts, demonstrations—something for everyone. Special activities for children will be included.

On the La Sierra campus, a track meet will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 12 noon.

Sunday evening, a Hulda Crooks Gala will be held at the Maruko Hotel in San Bernardino. Sponsored by LLU, proceeds from this event will benefit the Hulda Crooks Scholarship and Loan fund at the School of Public Health.

At the Gala, the Hulda Crooks Award of Achievement will be made to Suzy Katz, who held the Mrs. America title in 1987-1988, and to Mavis Lindgren, 81, who is recognized for running marathons. Tickets, at $50 per person, are available through the School of Public Health Development office, (714) 824-4752.

Edwin Krick, MD, MPH, dean of the School of Public Health, and Fitness Week committee chairman, says, "The purpose of Hulda Crooks Fitness Week is to emphasize our need for fitness in all areas of our lives—spiritual, physical, and financial. The two major causes of death in the U.S.—heart disease and cancer—are largely preventable. By following a sensible lifestyle that includes good nutrition, proper rest,

A private organization, known as Study Tapes, in Redlands, California, records Dr. Maxwell's weekly Sabbath School lesson studies (held in Prince Hall from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.), and distributes these tapes to hundreds of Sabbath School classes around the world. Recordings of other presentations and sermons by Dr. Maxwell are also available through Study Tapes. and regular exercise, Americans can substantially lower their risk of many lifestyle-related diseases."

Heart disease prevention day

The theme for Monday, May 1, is heart disease prevention emphasis, since nearly half of all deaths in our nation are related to heart disease, the number one killer of adults in the U.S. today. Elevated blood cholesterol is a major cause of heart disease. Cholesterol screening programs sponsored by the School of Public Health will be offered at Redlands Mall on Monday, May 1, from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m.; at the Campus Hill Church of Seventh-day Adventists in Loma Linda on Tuesday, May 2, from 7 a.m. to 12 noon; at the Inland Center Mall on Wednesday, May 3, from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m.; and in Riverside (date, time and location yet to be confirmed). Call 824-4994 for more information.

Cancer prevention day

The theme for Tuesday, May 2, is cancer prevention. Radio public service announcements will promote monthly breast self-exams for women, advise against smoking, and warn about the effects of a low fiber, high fat diet on the incidence of colorectal (bowel) cancer.

Financial fitness day

Wednesday's theme is financial fitness. Featured that day will be a "Money Sense Seminar" at Randall Visitors Center at 7 p.m. For ticket information call 785-2060, or 824-4578. Business and Management.

Community dental health day

Thursday, May 4, is Community Dental Health Day, sponsored by the School of Dentistry. A large tent will be set up on the lawn in front of the School. Activities for children will include a puppet show (six showings throughout the day), a "nutrition for kids" table, and free kits and toothbrushes will be given away.

Free oral health screenings for children and adults will be available. Adults may tour the School, beginning at 9 a.m., on the hour, throughout the day. Oral health demonstrations will also be given on the hour.

Information on career opportunities in dentistry, how to be a patient, and potential dental school patient information will be available. For more information, call 824-4605.

Physical fitness day

The theme for Friday, May 5, will be physical fitness. Radio public service announcements will promote exercise as the magical substance that can add years to your life, decrease your risk of heart disease by 50 percent, dramatically improve oxygen delivery to body muscle cells, decrease mental anxiety and depression, and lower blood pressure and cholesterol levels.

David Nieman, DHSc, MPH, professor of nutrition at LLU School of Public Health, and Hulda Crooks will discuss fitness during Sabbath School presentations on Saturday, April 29, at the Campus Hill Church of Seventh-day Adventists (9:30 a.m.) and University Church of SDAs (9:50 a.m.), in Loma Linda, and on Saturday, May 6, (9:30 a.m.) at the La Sierra Collegiate SDA Church, Riverside. For more information call (714) 824-4578.

she added numerous speaking appointments, radio and television appearances to her schedule.

A graduate of Oklahoma University, Suzy is married to Bennett Katz, general counsel of VISA, and lives in San Francisco, where she recently began a career in writing.

Healthful living has always been important to Suzy and she commits at least one and a half hours a day to swimming, aerobics, bicycling or running. She describes herself as an "avowed sports fanatic" and it is obvious that she enjoys living her life to the fullest each day.

Mavis Lindgren, called "Amazing Mavis" by Sports Illustrated, just completed her 51st marathon when she ran as a member of the School of Public Health "Running for Research" team on March 5 in Los Angeles. At age 81, she holds many national and world age-group records for various running events.

Mrs. Lindgren took up walking in her early 60's and was discovered by the running world at the age of 70 when she set an age-group record for a 20-mile run in Sacramento.

Although the process of aging seems inevitable, Mrs. Lindgren is a glowing example of what is possible through determination, adopting healthful habits, and keeping God in the center of life.

The Hulda Crooks Gala is the event through which individuals and businesses can play a significant part in supporting higher education by their generosity and attendance. Tickets for the benefit are $50 per person. This includes an evening of entertainment and celebration with Hulda Crooks, "Mrs. America," Mrs. Lindgren, and other surprise celebrity guests, as well as special musical numbers and dinner.

LLUMC home health care department accredited by CHAP and NLN

Loma Linda University Medical Center's home health care department has become the only hospital-based home care program west of the Mississippi to be accredited by the Community Health Accreditation Program (CHAP) of the National League for Nursing (NLN).

"Although we have been through the grueling process of accreditation by the Joint Commission for the Accreditation of Health Organizations, which home care units normally go through," says Teresa Regester, RN, MS, director of professional care services (which includes home care, hospice, and family care services), "I decided that I wanted our home care department to be accredited by NLN. Their accrediting body is looking for excellence. To improve ourselves, we wanted to go through their accreditation process."

The LLUMC home care program received the coveted NLN accreditation in mid-April.

The Medical Center's home care department, inaugurated 21 years ago, was the first such entity in the Inland Empire. The department is Medicare-certified, and also is reimbursed by many insurance companies and by MediCal.

The home care team provides a full range of health care and social services to the patient and his or her family in familiar and comforting home surroundings. Members of the team not only provide care but also teach families what they need to know to help care for their family member. They offer services to patients of all ages on either a short-term or long-term basis.

Following are some cases when home care services might be appropriate:

- An individual has recently

Free EKG exercise tests offered to selected individuals

The Loma Linda University School of Public Health is offering free EKG exercise treadmill tests to selected persons. Those who are more than 25 years old and have no diagnosis of heart disease may apply for the treadmill testing as part of a study on exercise.

The first testing date is April 30.

More information may be obtained by calling 824-4753.

been discharged from the hospital and is well but not fully recovered, such as after surgery or childbirth.

• Someone has a chronic condition that needs frequent monitoring, such as diabetes, kidney disease, stroke, heart/lung disease, or MS.

• A person recently has developed a disease and needs help learning to cope with it.

• A child is born with a condition needing regular monitoring.

• An individual has a terminal illness and needs emotional support and a program of pain management.

• Someone — perhaps an elderly person, a stroke victim, or a fracture victim — has limited mobility and needs help with daily tasks.

• An individual is homebound.

• A family needs help to relieve family members from the constant burdens of caring for an ill member.

The home care program offers a variety of services, including:

Health services: Personal care, such as bathing, dressing, dental hygiene, and dressing changes; nutritional services; medical and skilled nursing care; various therapies, such as physical, occupational, speech, ostomy, respiratory, IV, and chemotherapy.

Homemaking services: Helping with meal preparation, housekeeping, laundry, food shopping; teaching the family how to budget or to raise a child; child care.

Social services: Helping the family to cope with problems associated with the care of an ill person; coordinating home care with other community programs affecting the family.

Hospice services: Physical, social, and emotional care for the terminally ill and their families; pain control; care for the family through the bereavement period.

Supportive services: Adult day care; adult foster care; legal and financial counseling; respite care, to give relief to the family; pastoral counseling; home-delivered meals; friendly visiting; telephone reassurance; transportation and escort programs; equipment services.

LLUMC's home care department has 26 full-time employees, 7 per-diem employees, and 34 independent contractors. Medical director for the program is John Uniat, MD, from general internal medicine.

"Dr. Uniat provides ongoing support, information, and inservice for our staff," says Mrs. Regester. "He is a real asset to the program."

"One of the strengths that we feel exists in our program," she adds, "is the close working relationship that we have with the continuing care nurses at the Medical Center. The information they provide for us enables us to give high-quality continuing care once the patient leaves the hospital."

During 1988, approximately 12,000 home visits were made by LLUMC home care personnel.

In addition to serving a 16-mile radius in the Loma Linda area, the department has branch services in Victorville and Lake Arrowhead.

More information about home care can be obtained by calling Loma Linda Home Health Care at (714) 824-4422.

The parents of infants who have undergone heart transplants meet at a press conference held Sunday, April 23, at Loma Linda University Medical Center. At the press conference — conducted at the same time an animal rights demonstration against research at LLU was going on outside the Medical Center — the parents emphasized the need for continuing medical research. All the parents agreed that their children would not be alive today without the use of animal models in research.

Two LLUMC nurses invited to speak at Rome meeting

Tony Hilton, RN, MPH, CRRN, pulmonary rehabilitation clinical nurse specialist at Loma Linda University Medical Center; and Julie Sconza, RN, BSN, pediatric discharge planner, were invited to speak at the World Congress on Home Care held in Rome, Italy, from March 14 to 18.

Their 10-minute presentation, "Hospital to Home for the Ventilator-assisted Patient: The Future Is Now," gave a complete overview of the educational program for ventilator-assisted patients as practiced at Loma Linda University Medical Center.

The goal of the multidisciplinary program is to prepare as many patients on ventilators as possible to go home, where — data show — both patients and caregivers perceive that the patient has an improved quality of life.

Loma Linda's program for management of these patients, as reported on in Rome by Mrs. Hilton and Miss Sconza, includes policies, procedures, staff education, patient and caregiver education, identification of roles and responsibilities of the multidisciplinary team, and documentation of training and proficiency.

In addition to preadmission screening, the management program includes six phases: (1) planning and assessment, (2) instructions to caregivers and patients, (3) return demonstration of skills taught, (4) independent care delivery, (5) discharge to home, and (6) postdischarge follow-up.

In their presentation, Mrs. Hilton and Miss Sconza explored some ethical and legal dilemmas, policies regarding withholding and withdrawal of life support, and the special needs of infants and children. They also discussed their training program for home care nurses and considerations in working with third-party payors.

They included cost comparisons of long-term care in the intensive care unit, basic care unit, extended care facility, and home care.

"In our cost-comparison study covering three years," says Mrs. Hilton, "we found that the average monthly intensive care unit charges for a ventilator-assisted patient were $101,000, versus $3,000 for the patient at home."

"These are not comatose patients that we are sending home," Mrs. Hilton explains. "They are alert and are cognizant of what is going on. Some patients can live at home for many years on ventilator support. With a portable ventilator, they even can travel."

The program, which has been in existence at LLUMC for approximately 12 years, gives hope both to patients and to their

Over 580 runners participated in the 9th annual Cancer Buster run, at Loma Linda University on Sunday, April 23. Along with the usual 5, 10, and 15 K runs, this year's events included a 10 K race-walk, and a special 5 K fun walk. The fun walk was entered by parents, friends, and family of cancer patients — over 70 of those, pediatric cancer patients. Fun walkers received recognition documents for themselves, and T-shirts and trophies for the children they represented. The American Cancer Society sponsors the annual run as a fundraiser for cancer research. This year, over $4,000 was raised. Trophies were supplied by the Candlelighters, coordinated by Betty Grames; the run was directed and coordinated by Delmar Aitken, MD, assistant professor of surgery, School of Medicine, and his assistant, Carla Sanders.

families. Miss Sconza tells of a 15-year-old girl who became ventilator-dependent after undergoing neurosurgery. No rehabilitation facility could be found that would take her on a ventilator. Her family wanted to take her home; so, they were trained at LLUMC to care for her and were able to take her home.

"They are continuing to try to wean her off the ventilator," Miss Sconza says, "and she is progressing in the program."

Another patient, a woman in her 80s, had been in the intensive care unit for six months. Medical personnel weren't sure from day to day that she would survive.

"The patient basically had given up," Mrs. Hilton explains.

The staff decided that they would try to prepare her to go home.

"Within a week of the time that she had been told that she could go home," Mrs. Hilton says, "her attitude changed. This resulted in medical stabilization; her nutritional status improved; her physical condition improved; she began to sit up and then to walk. She was happy. She had hope, and so did her family."

She was discharged, with 24-hour nursing care as well as her husband to help care for her.

"The first week was a little difficult for them," Mrs. Hilton relates, "but after further medical intervention, she made a complete turnaround. In two weeks, she was completely weaned off the ventilator, she was more independent in her care, she was eating normally, and she was more active. We saw a dramatic improvement in her."

"This is not necessarily a normal case," Mrs. Hilton points out,

"It was an unusually good situation. Many patients take longer to get weaned off the ventilator, and some never do, but the quality of life is much improved for them."

Because of requests to share the program with other acute-care facilities and health-care providers, many of whom learned about it at national and international conventions, Mrs. Hilton and Miss Sconza — along with Philip M. Gold, MD, FACP, FCCP, chief of pulmonary medicine at LLUMC; and David McLean, RRT, MPH, RCP, clinical coordinator for respiratory home care — have put together a package that explains the program.

The package includes a 400-page manual that gives detailed information about the program, and a 25-minute, 1/2-inch VHS video tape, produced by LLUMC's audiovisual department. Other health-care facilities can purchase this package and adapt the program to fit their own and their patients' unique needs.

The manual and video were on display all week during the World Congress on Home Care in Rome and generated a great deal of enthusiasm, according to Mrs. Hilton.

"The Italians want to translate both the manual and the video into Italian," she says.

The program to help such ventilator-assisted patients go home has received three awards:

- "SAMM — Another Method of Rehabilitation Education," an article describing the program, was the winner of the Parke-Davis Literary Award in November, 1983. (SAMM stands for "Self-Administration of Medical Modalities").

- In July, 1984, "SAMM Program" a report on Loma Linda's program, was a finalist in the Foundation for Excellence in Nursing competition in the unit/team category.

- The program, described in a 10-page document, "Here Today, Here Tomorrow — Managing the Long-term Ventilator-dependent Patient," became the Region IX winner of the Glasrock Discharge Planning Program of the Year Award in September, 1988.

Dr. Donald Tredway joins LLUMC staff in endocrinology

Donald R. Tredway, MD, PhD, has joined the medical staff at Loma Linda University Medical Center as chief of the section of reproductive endocrinology and infertility in the department of gynecology and obstetrics.

Dr. Tredway also is a professor of gynecology and obstetrics in the School of Medicine. He is board certified in infertility and reproductive endocrinology and is a diplomate of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology as well as of the National Board of Medical Examiners.

A native of Lawrenceville, Illinois, Dr. Tredway graduated from the University of Illinois College of Medicine in 1966. He completed his internship and specialty training in reproductive endocrinology and infertility at the University of Southern California. He also earned a doctorate in physiology from USC in 1974.

His many honors include a Diploma of Distinctive Merit from the American Fertility Society and editorial positions with Fertility and Sterility magazine and the Journal of Reproductive Medicine.

Christian heritage will be topic of Biblical historian

"Our Christian Heritage in the Holy Land" will be the topic of a special presentation by Ory N. Mazar, former assistant to the President of Israel, a Christian Biblical historian, and director of the Jerusalem Bible Institute. The Campus Hill Church invites those who are interested to attend this program on Sabbath, May 6, at 3 p.m. for a first hand Christian report from the Holy Land.

Dr. Mazar will present recent archeological discoveries and testimonies left by the first disciples. Topics to be covered include: Mt. Moriah, the mountain of the Lord unearthed; A walk in the temple's court where Christ taught; The uncovering of the store of the money changers; Excavations at the temple gate; What happened when the temple veil tore in two; Mystery of the palace of King David's dynasty; Witnessing the disciples' catacombs; Revelations of early Christian's house on Mt. Zion; Uncovering a Christian city in the Negeu; Findings in Zipori, the town of Mary; Identification of Bethseida, home of Peter; Story of the discovery of the boat from Christ's time in the Sea of Galilee; Resolution of the true place of Calvary; the Biblical background of today's events; and much more.

The brochure announcing this program states, "We can now walk on the same cobblestones on which Jesus walked; we finger the tools His disciples used and read the writings they etched on the walls."

"At the same time, the recent events in the Middle East and their Biblical, religious background directly affect all of us and occupy the attention of our media daily."

"Sadly lacking, however, is our knowledge of the Holy Land and its unveiling Biblical legacy to us as Christians. Also lacking is our understanding or the settings and causes of the past and present events in the Middle East."

This presentation is designed to illuminate these issues. For more information, call the Loma Linda Campus Hill Church at 796-0222.

LLA experiences robotics course for technology education students

Loma Linda Academy technology education students had a unique three-week experience recently.

Instructor Jay Linthicum had attended an intensive manufacturing seminar during the summer and had put in a request for the use of specialized equipment from TII Robotics of Palentine, Illinois, who had established a cooperative program with the State of California. As a result Loma Linda Academy was the only private school among the 23 schools in the whole state to benefit from this program.

Because robots are manipulated by pneumatic and hydraulic mechanism, students received hands on training in the principles of hydraulics, pneumatics and engineering mechanisms coupled with an IBM personal computer.

The robotics equipment for this program was assembled by top technology educators in California in an effort to begin integrating economical yet complete robotics curriculums into high school industrial technology classrooms.

"This experience demystifies robotics; it gives students an advantage in the technology and engineering market place. I feel that our secondary schools in Southeastern [Conference of SDAs] should get together to purchase the program and the equipment, which then could be rotated among the schools. This new development is going to change industry and I would like to see our technology education classes be on the cutting edge of developments for the benefit of our students," commented Mr. Linthicum.

Proposed student center / recreation complex now under study

Loma Linda University has reestablished a committee to study and make recommendations concerning the new student center and recreation project proposed for construction on the vacant land located adjacent to Mound Street between the University maintenance facilities and the Loma Linda Children's Center, according to

Support group invites interested public

The San Bernardino County Interstitial Cystitis Support Group will meet May 21, at Loma Linda University.

Interstitial Cystitis is a rare bladder disease which affects the bladder wall or lining. One out of 600 people have this disease. It is not terminal, but debilitating. There is no known cause or cure.

Symptoms include frequent urination (60 times a day); urgency, the sensation of having to urinate immediately, also accompanied sometimes by pain, pressure or spasms; pain in the abdominal, urethral, or vaginal area; and pain associated with sexual intercourse.

The support group, established with the help of Roger Hadley, MD, a urologist at LLUMC, welcomes sufferers, their family members and friends, doctors, and nurses. If you are interested in attending, please contact Robin Handgis at 888-6468.

Norman J. Woods, PhD, president of the University.

"The new recreation center is our number one priority in the way of physical plant needs," Dr. Woods says. All physical plant needs were put on "hold" during the period when the University was considering the unification of the La Sierra campus at Loma Linda.

Included in phase one of the multi-phase project will be a swimming pool and playing field areas. Subsequent phases will include the construction of a full-size gymnasium (to replace Gentry Gymnasium), and a student center.

The reactivated committee has been charged with the task to study and bring to the administration a proposed plan for fulfillment of the student center / recreation complex.

Leading out in the formation of the committee is David Osborne, vice president for student affairs, and Gaines R. Partridge, EdD, dean of students and associate dean of admissions on the Loma Linda campus.

"We have asked former Loma Linda University president Dr. David J. Bieber to resume the chairmanship of this committee,"

Dr. Partridge says.

Other committee members include Edd Ashley, PhD, chairman of the department of physical therapy, School of Allied Health Professions; Gus Cheatham, vice president for public affairs for Loma Linda University and Medical Center; Ron Dailey, dean of students, School of Dentistry; Sylvia Davis, associate director of admissions, School of Dentistry; William Hooker, PhD, associate dean for student affairs, School of Medicine; Ardyce Koobs, councilwoman, city of Loma Linda; Edwin Krick, MD, dean, School of Public Health; Lillian Miller, a local realtor; Bart Rippon, PhD, dean, Graduate School; Clarence Schilt, associate pastor, University Church of Seventh-day Adventists; Bo Ying Wat, MD, professor of pathology, School of Medicine; and Bruce Wilcox, PhD, professor of biochemistry, School of Medicine.

At their first meeting — slated to be scheduled in the next couple of weeks — the committee will add an equal number of students representing all the schools on the Loma Linda campus, Dr. Partridge says.

Deanne Eggleston, a San Francisco woman nearly totally blind from diabetes, recently visited Loma Linda University Medical Center as part of her bicycle journey across the United States. Ms. Eggleston, who has no feeling in her feet, is riding to "highlight the plight of disabled people." At Loma Linda, she was presented with the key to the city, as well as with donations from the Eye and Tissue Bank, and from several faculty medical entities on campus. Ms. Eggleston follows her friend Sue Hadden, who wears a bright orange reflector. At stops, her seeing eye dog Kaiser leaves the van to join her.

Some excitement was inspired on the Loma Linda campus recently when two emergency helicopters landed on the grass next to the Medical Center. Occasionally two helicopters will bring patients at the same time, but standard procedure is for one to use the LLUMC helipad while the other lands on the lawn. This deviation from the norm brought out Medical Center officials to discover any problems, but apparently the "crisis" was just the helipad being painted.

Hulda Crooks, mountain climber from Loma Linda, will be grand marshal of Southeastern California Conference's Pathfinder parade on Sunday, May 7. At the end of the parade route, when all the participants have assembled for the beginning of the annual Pathfinder Fair, Mrs. Crooks will speak to the group.

"It's a real privilege for us to have a guest like Mrs. Crooks," says Rudy Carrillo, conference Pathfinder director. "She's nearly 93, but her zest for living makes her a real inspiration to our young people. I know they'll enjoy meeting her."

Also participating in the parade will be a marching band, equestrian units, floats, clowns, and 1,300 to 1,400 smartly uniformed Pathfinders. This year's theme will be "Hearts and Hands for Christ."

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. at the corner of La Sierra Avenue and Schuyler Street, in Riverside, turn left on Pierce Street, and end at the conference office on the corner of Pierce and Golden.

Booths on the conference grounds will offer international foods and activities from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Brahms' Requiem will be performed on both campuses

Two performances of the choral masterpiece A German Requiem by Johannes Brahms will be given Saturday, April 29. Don Thurber, PhD, associate professor of music, College of Arts and Sciences, will conduct the 4 p.m. performance at the Loma Linda University SDA Church; William Chunestudy, assistant professor of music, CAS, will conduct the 6:30 p.m. performance at the La Sierra Collegiate Church.

Featured soloists are Maurita Phillips-Thornburgh, soprano, and Norman Goss, baritone. The combined choirs of LLU, the University Church, and the La Sierra Collegiate Church will join with the orchestras of Loma Linda University and the University Church.

Completed and first performed in its present form in 1869, the requiem was never intended for liturgical use. Its purport was not to plead divine mercy for the dead, but to offer consolation and hope for the living. The appeal of this musical masterpiece is found in its tender, sincere beauty and lyrical compassion.

No admission will be charged, but a freewill offering will be taken.
