COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Loma Linda Amphitheater, Loma Linda, California

Sunday, June the ninth

Nineteen hundred and forty

Six o'clock

Footpath of Service

To be glad because life gives us moments to fill with work and with kindness, and opportunities to express appreciation of earth's mysteries and beauties; to be not forgetful of our origin—our homes, our school, our church and the friends who have been responsible for our success; to give deference to our colleagues, courtesy to our helpers, heartfelt sympathy to those across whose lives is flung the veil of sorrow; to fear nothing but our own hesitation at difficulties and to loathe nothing but dishonesty and cowardice; to gain the respect of our teachers, the confidence of our patients, the approbation of our fellowmen; to retain our poise in the face of victory or of defeat; to remove the ill that grieves and place the balm of healing in its stead; to be ashamed to die until we have achieved some triumph for humanity, whether it be an improved therapy, a perfect experiment, or a rescued life; to guard the cradle, protect the workmart, hover tenderly near our human trusts even to the portals of the tomb; to be ever mindful that today, lived in service for the Great Physician, makes "every yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope"—these are the little waymarks in our footpath of service.

—Joseph Mossberger.

The success of an outdoor exercise depends, in a large measure, upon the thoughtful cooperation of the audience. The recessional march is a beautiful and significant part of the ceremony. Kindly remain standing in your place until the conclusion of the exercise.
