WMH Nurse Reins
As Queen for a Day

By Jerry Wiley

HOLLYWOOD—"It was simply marvelous," Queen Lavaun said as we sat discussing the confluence of her appearance at the Knickerbocker Hotel. She was reliving a few hectic days from the summer, June 29, 30, and July 1 and 2, when she and her fellow members of the Heart Mission had missed desperately some of the equipment from home as they struggled unsuccessfully to save the life of a little girl in Taipei, Taiwan. They left the little girl's life might have been saved if they had had a positive pressure respirator, but they could not find one anywhere in Taipei.

When the team was the first of medical specialists asked by the U.S. State Department to go to another country to help when they were needed dental care for many patients by students of all four dental classes, with assistance from dental hygiene students. In cooperation with the San Bernadino County Welfare Department, Dr. Frank is a 1947 graduate of the Loma Linda University School of Medicine, is general chairman of the mission hospital.

The clinic is sponsored by the Dental Students Association with Del Herrick, '64, serving as its president, and George Font, '64, coordinating the clinic.

versity Heart Mission Team trip to Pakistan appeared in the magazine section, California Weekly, of the November 10 issue of the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner.

The clinic was set at the third monthly dental welfare clinic held November 10 at the Loma Linda University School of Dentistry. The amount of service rendered more than doubled that done during any previous clinic.

The team was comprised of 131 dental students, 12 alumni, six faculty members and 25 Alumni from the area and the faculty oversaw the procedures. The students came from near Sacramento to assist, and were coordinated with the San Bernadino County Welfare Department.

With the treatment, each patient is given oral care education, an emphasis on preventive dentistry.

The University views with deep appreciation the visit of the team of educators representing the Western Association of Schools and Colleges. Such visits are designed to bring the University, its standards, its organization and folkways into comparison with the larger world of higher education represented by the membership of the Association.

This comparison with the best and most respected educational institutions of the United States and the Southland, and the counsel of the visiting school team of specialists in higher education are processes of inestimable value to the University.

It is part of the American way that colleges and universities are evaluated by organizations representing peer institutions, and not by government agencies as is the case in many other countries of the world.

There are in the United States six of these regional accrediting agencies, each administered and financed by its member institutions. In each of these regional accrediting agencies there is a committee which concerns itself with academic standards, methods and plans for the evaluation of the member or applicant institutions.

I believe that a campus under way in the University are always conducted with the purpose of counseling and assisting the institution toward the realization of its own avowed objectives. The campus is tested by time and experience in the larger academic community represented by the Association.

Accreditation by a regional association, therefore testifies to all concerned that sister institutions in the same geographical area have evaluated the program in the school being evaluated to admit it to membership and its representatives to fellowship.

With accrediting agencies thus conceived and valued, I would second any offer to undergo inspection—and membership is a relationship to be prized.

Loma Linda University employees have as much right as the next fellow to seek excuses for pocket book protection. Judged by purely economic standards they might be better advised to consider an annual United Fund subscription.

It is to their eternal credit both collectively and individually that yearly they defy natural inclination to seek avoidance of this social responsibility.

"We are underpaid already," they might plead, but support their claim with wage figures from business and industry. Or "we give heavily to church and school programs," they argue without inviting criticism.

The victory dinner reported in this issue of SCOPE is of greater significance than its immediate dollar figure may necessarily imply. The victory being celebrated is the victory of the employee, its purpose is the employee, and it is a moral victory.

They have so far exceeded by more than ten fold their fair share in the charity crusade, and show every likelihood of passing last year's overflows, with funds still coming in. Their compassion for the victims of public injustice, their sympathy with the poverty not alone in dollars and cents, but also in the time and energy of willing volunteers who work and pray for a successful campaign. The charity fund drive is an expression of the determination of the community to do for others what they have done for our campus.

Employees have been reminded that community good will earned by strong participation will be an important and indelible stamp of our generosity. This is very true, and we will quickly acknowledge the value of friendships won in this way. But even more important, we believe, is the benefit or blessing redounding to each employee participant. The employees' generous achievement gives us cause to pay tribute to the United Fund giver. Moreover, it makes each giver better person.

Indeed we have a concern and an interest in current events and world affairs as these validate the principles of truth as it is taught the Bible in our churches and schools are not to stand aloof from political or religious questions, because by so doing we stand to see the ends of others, leading equally to their failure, comparable to the political figures. On the other hand, political questions, on which we should keep silent on religious questions, "The Lord would have His church to witness holy things." We must learn the lesson that it is a letter written to the teachers, "Our Attitude in Regard to Political Questions." And the paper by charter will forever be a non-partisan role in its commenting on social and political developments at the national and international levels. This is potentially impossible when one takes any comment of one's own political position into consideration.

California Conferences Largest in North America

The Southeastern California Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, with its headquarters in downtown Los Angeles, hosts one of the largest Adventist conferences in the world. It is a gathering of faith where people come together to worship, learn, and grow in their faith. The conference is a significant event for the Adventist community and is a testament to the strength and dedication of the Adventist faith.

With a membership of over 100,000, the conference is one of the largest in North America. Its main focus is to bring together Adventists from all over the region to celebrate their faith and to learn from each other. The conference includes various events such as worship services, seminars, and workshops. It is a time for Adventists to come together and share their faith with others.

In summary, the Southeastern California Conference is a significant event for the Adventist community. It is a gathering of faith where people come together to worship, learn, and grow in their faith. It is a testament to the strength and dedication of the Adventist faith.
University Notes 5 Years With County Hospital

The work of the Mexico Pan American League in the past year was supported by President Paul Freeman, SM'44, at a recent meeting of alumni recently at the Loma Linda University California. Land for the station was donated to the League in 1949 by a patient of T. Corbin Reynolds, associate professor of orthopedic surgery at Loma Linda University.

Loma Linda University has been a central focus for the medical profession, and has a long history of supporting medical research. In recent years, the university has expanded its role in providing medical education and research opportunities for students and professionals. The university has also been involved in various social and community outreach programs, including medical clinics in Mexico, and has provided a small salary for medical clinics in the area.

In 1956, the alumni association successfully recovered from the financial problems incurred through the purchase and operation of the radio station WMCX, according to Floyd L. Larrsen, SM'34, treasurer. "The statement indicates that the association is successfully recovering from the financial losses suffered through the purchase and operation of the radio station WMCX," says Dr. Larrsen.

The financial statement also indicates that the association is financially stable and ready to take on new projects in the future. The association looks forward to continuing its dedication to the support of the university and its students.

Seminar to Feature 5-Day-Plan To Stop Smoking. Speaker, Dr. McFarland

Medical Evangelism Seminar will feature J. Wayne McFarland, SM'38, at a meeting November 28 in Cutter Hall at 7 p.m. Dr. McFarland is medical secretary of the Atlantic Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, but is presently with the General Conference in connection with the "Five-Day Plan To Stop Smoking.

Dr. McFarland is a driving force behind the Chiropractic Research with Mervyn G. Hardinge, professor of pharmacology, and Elmer Lassnig, associate professor of pharmacology. Members of the group recently attended a weekend retreat in problems at the Loma Linda University California.

Most members slept outdoors, according to Elvin Adams, public relations secretary.
